Molotov Given Task Of Bringing China Into Moscow's Red Fold

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst
Moscow at long last apparently is getting set to take a major hand in the development of a China that rapidly is coming under control of the Chinese Communist armies sweeping down from the north.

Thus far the Russians have maintained a studied hands-off attitude. Now, however, a responsible East European diplomat in Paris says Soviet Deputy Premier Molotov has been placed in charge of Russia's policies in the Orient. This informant predicts an early shift in Moscow's attitude of "aloofness" towards the Chinese Reds.

Molotov's appointment in itself would lend support to this forecast, for he is Stalin's right hand. As a matter of fact observers have been expecting just such a development in Russian policy towards China. The time has come to start organizing that vast country as the keystone of Red influence in the Orient.

Heretofore Russia has played a very cautious game. She brought Manchuria within her sphere of influence, and then seemed to be most punctilious in her relations with Mao Tse-Tung, the hardbilled and efficient leader of the Chinese Communists.

Tough Leader Faced
Moscow's caution may have been due largely to the fact that Mao is a powerful leader and has exhibited nationalist tendencies which don't fit in with Russia's edict that the sovereignty of Communist nations must rest with her. In short, there has been much speculation abroad whether Mao was developing into another Yugoslav Tito who would refuse to recognize Moscow's supremacy.

Whether this does indeed represent Mao's attitude remains to be seen. He is a good deal of an enigma. He got his start as a revolutionist back in 1911 in the rebellion which overthrew the Manchu Dynasty. He holds that the peasants and not the working proletariat should form the basis of the Chinese upheaval. Pursuant to this idea, he always has practiced fierce expropriation of holdings of landlords and the redistribution of land to the peasants.

However—and here is the puzzle—when critics say his party is out for agrarian reform only (as I myself have been told in China) he explodes:

"Make no mistake about it. Ours is a party of Communism."

Caution Planned
In any event, it will take a Molotov to iron out the wrinkles. Naturally one would expect the Soviet to proceed with studied diplomacy in dealing with a tough leader like Mao. It will be surprising if the Russian program isn't one of tempered advice and material assistance which will bring China into the Soviet fold gradually.

The betting, I should say, is that Moscow intends to eschew strong-arm methods for the present and try to bring Mao, wholeheartedly into the Soviet fold. Should the Russians be successful, it naturally would mean that they would have much to say about China's relations—political and economic—with the western powers.

Postgraduate Cancer Lecture Set Here June 9

Post graduate lectures for physicians on the diagnosis and treatment of cancer will be held at Roseburg June 9, under the joint sponsorship of the Oregon State Board of Health and the Oregon State Medical Society. Dr. J. E. Campbell, president of the Douglas County Medical Society, announced today.

The meeting will be held at 4:00 and 6:30 p. m. at the Veterans Hospital.

Featured as speakers during the first week of the tour will be Dr. George Z. Williams, professor of pathology, and Dr. Randolph Hoge, professor of gynecology, of the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. H. Mason Morfill, assistant professor of surgery and oncologist at the University of Colorado Medical School, and Dr. Harry M. Nelson, assistant professor of surgery at the Wayne University Medical School, will be the speakers during the second week.

The extramural lecture series is part of the annual postgraduate instruction program for Oregon physicians.

Dr. J. P. Cleland, Oregon City, and Dr. W. J. Weese, Ontario, medical society councilors, will accompany the speakers during the first and second week, respectively. Dr. George Gibson, director of the cancer section of the State Board of Health, will be in attendance during the entire series.

Younce To Be Line Coach At OSC

CORVALLIS, June 7. — Leonard Younce, former all-american and all-American guard at Oregon State College and later all-professional at the same position, will be the new line coach at his alma mater.

The announcement was made today by Athletic Director Spec Koohe. Younce succeeded Jim Dixon, who resigned after 18 years to become a full time physical education instructor. Younce, originally from Roosevelt High School of Portland, played three years for the OSC varsity, his last season in 1940. He was with the New York Giants of the National Football League from 1941 to 1948, with the exception of the 1942 and 1945 seasons. Last year he was the team captain and so-called "playing line coach."

Younce has been an assistant at Portland University for the last four spring practice seasons and had some prep school coaching experience in the East. He will report to the new job on July 1.
