Western Oregon Milk Problems Told At Hearing

EUGENE, June 24. - (P) The milk control section of the State Department of Agriculture conducted a public hearing here this week on the price of milk and took down sworn testimony from producers, distributors and consumer.

Many producers of milk for the Eugene millt shed, which ex-tends from immediately south of Portland to the California line, gave testimony before Melvin J. Conklin, examiner for the sec-tion, that the price of butterfat on the state's quota system should be increased to encourage better quantity and quality of production. production.

Distributors of milk declared

Distributors of milk declared that the status quo should be maintained because of high operating costs and the high cost of labor.

H. E. Carlson, representing the Oregon Independent Retail Grocers Assn., testified that the retail grocers were interested in maintaining the present margin for retailers. ing difficulty maintaining satisfactory margins. C. E. Eastman said producers in his area had just finished taking pictures of about 60 barns that were now empty and many of which were formerly producing grade A milk. There were hints of a possible change in the state's quota system for milk producers and distributors during the hearing. Conklin asked several who testified what they would think of basing production quota on a hundred weight of milk rather than on a butterfat content.
