Multnomah County Sheriff Files Libel Action Against Oregonian

PORTLAND, July 11.—(AP)—Sheriff Marion (Mike) Elliott, who has been feuding with Portland newspapers, Saturday filed a $300,000 libel suit against the Oregonian, and defied his opponents to "go ahead and start a recall."

Elliott asserted in an interview "I have no fears. If the voters want a recall then let them recall me. Personally I doubt that enough of the voters want me out of office badly enough to do something about it. But if they do, let them prove it."

This was in response to an Oregonian editorial Saturday that a recall movement might follow.

Elliott's suit was based on a column later retracted, by the Oregonian's William Moyes on June 8 that said the Multnomah County sheriff had been seen cruising on the Columbia River in the middle of the week on a boat where bottles were in evidence. Moyes retracted the statements the next day with the explanation that it was a case of mistaken identity.

Elliott's suit asked $400,000 general damages and $100,000 punitive damages. The suit named as defendants Moyes, M. J. Frey, Oregonian general manager, and a John Doe—identified as a man who took pictures of the person mistaken for Elliott.

Elliott told a reporter, "I want it understood that this filing is only incidental to my feelings about an Oregonian editorial which appeared this (Saturday) morning. The suit has been in the offing for some time and only this morning was it completed so it could be filed."

Elliott has been at odds with the Portland newspapers since the Oregonian published an article last year stating that Elliott had mistated his age, education and war record to get a job in the sheriff's office. Elliott admitted the misstatements.

The latest fuss came over Elliott's suspension of Stanley MacDonald, county criminologist. He told reporters MacDonald had been using county photographic equipment to gain fees from work for other counties. Before the Civil Service Board he charged MacDonald with insubordination. MacDonald explained he had a long understanding with the county that he would be allowed to work on such outside cases. The newspapers quoted a number of county officials who came to MacDonald's defense.

Neale Retains Tennis Crown At Coast Meet

PORTLAND, July 11.—(AP)—Emery Neale of Portland kept the men's singles crown of the Six Oregon tennis championship tournament in the state yesterday by winning for a fourth time.

But virtually all other titles in the week-long grind at Arlington Club courts were lugged off by out-of-staters after the weekend finals.

Neale defeated hard-playing Glenn Bassett, Los Angeles, 9-7, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, for the top honors. The women's singles title went to Jean Doyle, San Diego, who defeated Carol Deim, Santa Monica, 6-1, 6-0.

San Franciscans Jim Livingstone and Jim Kroesen held the men's doubles laurels after triumphing over Bassett and Jack Shoemaker, UCLA ace, 6-1, 10-8, 6-2. The women's doubles were claimed by Misses Doyle and Deim who ousted Jean Kroft, Tacoma, and Mary Green, Vancouver, B. C., 6-0, 6-3. The mixed doubles were taken by Livingstone and Miss Doyle. They bested Mary and Bill Green, Vancouver, B. C., 6-2, 6-4.

Other champions: Patsy Heard, Portland, junior women's singles; Jim Hodgkins, Portland, junior veterans singles; Paul Willey, Vancouver, B. C., and Bill Quillan, Seattle, junior men's doubles; Bill Quillan, Seattle, boys' singles; Carolyn Tamble, Portland, girls' singles; Charles Carter, Portland, and Gary Peterson, Seattle, boys' doubles.

Reuther In Full Control At Meet Of Auto Workers

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 11.—(AP)—Developments at the CIO United Auto Workers convention left no doubt today of Walter Reuther's overwhelming control of the million-member union.

As the 2,400 delegates swung into their second session, the energetic-smooth-operating president of the once factionally split UAW already had scored resounding victories in several tests of strength.

Seven resolutions drawn up by a Reuther-dominated committee were adopted with a minimum of opposition.

One of them brought on the convention's first show of Reuther's strength. A resolution was introduced pledging the union to all-out political action aimed at repealing the Taft-Hartley law.

But John De Vito, a member of Cleveland Local 45 who ran for UAW president against Reuther at the last convention 20 months ago, suggested an amendment.

He wanted the resolution to call for a one-day work holiday to back the repeal drive.

With only a few hands raised in opposition the resolution was adopted without amendment and De Vito's proposal never was put to a vote.

Some of the resolutions: Urged federal action to "check recession and to restore full production and full employment" by extending unemployment benefits, increasing the minimum wage from 40 cents an hour to $1, more public works and other means.

Endorsed President Truman's "Fair Deal" legislative program. Demanded removal of pay differentials between men and women workers and workers in different areas for equal work.

Called for congressional action on national health and housing programs.

Without announcing any deadline for a possible walkout, Reuther indicated the UAW would not hesitate to strike the Ford Motor Co. or any other auto firm that does not meet union demands for pensions, welfare funds and wage boosts.

In his opening address he called the demands "simple and compelling" and said "we are not going to permit them to be ignored or postponed."

He also said the union was prepared to "use all the weapons possessed by free labor" to win its demands.
