MR. and MRS. WALTER FISHER were caught by the camera as they stood by high-piled luggage in front of their home at 507 Vista Ave. upon their recent return from an extended visit to Europe.

Sailing from New York the middle of last March on the Queen Elizabeth, they debarked at Cherbourg and from there, in leisurely fashion, visited in Paris, Nice, the Riviera, Naples, Rome, Venice, Florence and most of the major points of interest throughout Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, England and Scotland. They returned to the United States from Southampton on the Conard liner Coronia.

While in Edinburgh, they golfed at St. Andrews, a course which to golfers represents that same pinnacle of ambition which a trip to Jerusalem does to a Christian or a pilgrimage to Mecca to a Moslem. (Picture by Paul Jenkins)

Outstanding Talent Obtained For Ashland's Shakespearean Festival

ASHLAND, Ore. — "We'll present the most polished performance ever staged during our annual summer drama program," Angus L. Bowmer, producing director of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival, commented today with the August 2 opening less than three weeks away. "Not only will a well-balanced selection of plays be seen, but the cast is the finest ever to participate during the nine years of the festival's history."

With two-thirds again as many players awarded roles as took part in the record 1948 performance, Bowmer notes that the majority of the 60 actors have had considerable professional, college, or civic theater experience.

"Take Dick Graham, for example," Bowmer points out. "He played for several seasons with Katharine Cornell on Broadway and has appeared in a number of motion pictures. Or Fred Nelson of Michigan. Fred has worked with drama groups at Harvard, Wellesley, the University of Michigan, and Northwestern university and has appeared with civic theater organizations at Grand Rapids and Detroit."

Mentioning others, Bowmer reminds of Jim Sandoe of the University of Colorado who has directed civic theater groups at Boulder and Palo Alto, Calif. Jane McArthur of Pensacola, Fla., now an undergraduate at Stanford, participated in the National High School Drama Institute at Northwestern and the Priscilla Beach Theater at Plymouth, Mass., while classmate Carol Eller of San Francisco was stage manager for the American Dance Festival in Connecticut last summer. Edna Loring of Ashland was graduated from the school of drama at the University of Wisconsin and taught dramatics at San Francisco for 25 years.

"With such excellent talent as this available, we are able to assure our primary objective — production of Shakespeare's works as a modern means of entertainment," Bowmer continues. "Too many folks remember studying the Bard's works in stuffy classroom sessions. Although our program is closely associated with the Shakespeare Summer school at Southern Oregon college, presentation of the plays in true Elizabethan style on our outdoor stage proves that they can be just as enjoyable as a motion picture."

Experienced student actors who have been cast in roles include 12 from Stanford university, nine from Southern Oregon, four from the University of Washington, and three from the University of Oregon. Among others are students at Washington State, Lewis and Clark, Montana State, and the Pasadena Playhouse.

Other civic theater groups represented include those at Portland and Medford in Oregon, Reno, Nev., and San Mateo, Calif.

Many of the actors have had practical radio experience, and the majority are planning to continue with stage careers.

Request For No State Seals On Cars Denied

SALEM, July 13—(AP)— State Industrial Accident Commissioners L. O. Arens and Paul Gurske denied yesterday that they asked the Board of Control for permission to drive state automobiles without having the official state seals on the sides of the cars.

They said that the letter requesting that permission was sent to the board by someone else in the Accident Commission office, and that Arens and Gurske had no knowledge of it.

The board turned thumbs down on the idea, ruling that all state cars, except those used by police agencies, should be clearly identified in order to curb their use for private purposes.

The United States did not develop commercial production of peanuts until after the Civil War when their food value was emphasized by the short rations of the time.
