Draws Notice In Parade Of Elks

The Roseburg contingent of Elks attending the national con-vention in Cleveland, Ohio, again were singled out for newspaper comment by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, according to an air mail letter from Roseburg Elk Al

Henninger.

The Cleveland newspaper reported 100,000 persons lined the parade route as 10,000 Elks marched through down.own Cleveland streets. Referring to the enthusiastic applause spectators gave outstanding units, the paper had this to say of the Roseburg group:

"Roseburg (Ore.) marchers carried small pine trees over their shoulders, while other units wore top hats and spats and carried canes."

According to Henninger's let-ter to the News-Review, "We have been having a good time, even though we didn't win the ritualistic contest."

Henninger concluded that he and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Al Cordon, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene

Cordon, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Krewson planned to leave by plane Thursday for Washington, D. C., for a brief visit before continuing to New York.

Henninger's letter was the second to report the notice the Roseburg group had gained during the convention. The Plain Dealer, Cleveland's leading newspaper, had previously mentioned the timber calls of the "spectacular group from Roseburg," in addition to running a picture of Mrs. Margaret Krewson and Mrs. Helen Cordon, Lady Elks.
