McClay Jr., son of Mrs. Charles Fiedler of Springfield, Ill., and Martin E. McClay Sr., of Roseburg, Saturday evening, July 9, at the First Presbyterian church. Dr. Morris H. Roach performed the impressive ceremony by candlelight at eight o'clock in the presence of more than 200 friends and relatives.

An all-white setting was arranged for the ceremony. The high background was banked with gorgeous arrangements of white calla lilies, white gladioli and white magnolias. A huge white icicle floor candle was placed in the center and flanked by four white candelabra holding tall white cathedral candles, which were lighted by Miss Irene Trapalaps and Mrs. Al Holt, who wore gowns of yellow dotted Swiss and daisy wristlets.

Three tiers of white silk rope, with every third pew marked with sprays of gladioli and tied with white satin bows, marked the aisle.

Mrs. Homer W. Gray played the traditional wedding music and played softly on the organ throughout the service. She accompanied Leroy Hiatt, who sang, "Smiling Through the Years," and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was very beautiful in an exquisite wedding gown of velvety dotted mouseline de sole in white. The off-the-shoulder yoke was edged with a ruffle of matching material. Side-ruffles from the close fitting bodice waistline ran to the hemline at both sides and outlined the full court train. The bodice was fastened at the back with tiny self-material buttons and the long sleeves were decorated in tiny buttons from the elbow to the wrists.

Her finger-tip veil of illusion fell from a headdress matching her gown and outlined with lilies-of-the-valley. She carried a white Bible topped by a large white orchid circled with stephanotis and a shower of white satin ribbons.

Miss Christina Trapalaps was maid of honor and wore a gown of pale pink of the same material and design as the bride's with the exception the sleeves were short. She wore a head-dress of matching material as her dress and outlined with daisies.

They wore headbands of matching material outlined with daisies and carried arm bouquets of white daisies. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids wore mitts fashioned from the same material as their gowns.

Little Colleen Davis, niece of the bride, and little Carla Butler, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls and wore floor-length gowns of white dotted Swiss over yellow taffeta and carried baskets of daisies.

Art Sevall was best man and Robert S. Allen, brother-in-law of the bride; Jerry Coen, cousin of the bride, and Bill Agren.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of silk print with a gardenia corsage. A large reception followed in the garden at the home of the bride's parents. Large floodlights were used for the occasion.

The bride's table was centered by a beautiful four-tiered wedding cake circled by white daisies and sweetpeas. Bouquets of sweetpeas and white magnolias completed the attractive decorations.

Mrs. Roy Catching and Mrs. J. R. Wharton poured. Mrs. Richard Coen and Mrs. Kenneth Quine served the cake, and Mrs. Eugene McElroy and Miss Audrie Roselund had charge of the punch bowl. Flower decorations at the church and reception were in charge of Mrs. H. O. Fargeter, Mrs. George Wharton and Mrs. Roy Catching.

Mrs. Wayne Privett (Allen Slattery) of Eugene was in charge of the gifts and Lorraine Losee and Irene Trapalaps were in charge of the guest book. Throughout the reception, Mrs. Frances Lintott played softly on her portable organ. Miss Christina Trapalaps sang, "I Love Thee Dear," accompanied by Mrs. Lintott.

For traveling the bride chose a light grey suit with black accessories. Her hat was a large black straw with a red velvet band. She wore an orchid corsage. Following a honeymoon to Odell Lake and to Crater Lake, they are now at home to their friends in Roseburg.
