

Citizenship To Be Stressed By Head Of Kiwanis

J. Hugh Jackson, dean of the graduate school of business at Stanford University and newly elected president of Kiwanis International, has informed officers of the Roseburg Kiwanis club that his administration during the next several months would continue to emphasize the theme, "Aggressive Citizenship—Our Individual Responsibility."

Installed as president of the community service organization at the closing session of its recent 34th annual convention at Atlantic City, N. J., the prominent California educator said he would urge Kiwanis clubs to work for world peace and guard against subversive activities.

As the spokesman for 3,000 Kiwanis clubs, embracing 200,000 business and professional leaders, Dean Jackson succeeds J. Belmont Mosser, widely known St. Marys, Pa., industrialist. He will begin a speaking tour shortly that will carry him into practically every state of the United States and province of Canada.

The new chief executive of Kiwanis International has held a number of important positions during the past several years, including the presidency of the American Accounting Association, the National Association of Cost Accountants, and the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

A graduate of Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, Jackson received his M. B. A. degree from Harvard University and an LL. D. degree from Simpson College. A contributor to business and professional publications, he is the author of four well-known volumes on accounting. Awarded the "Diamond Key for 1945" by the National Association of Teaching Certified Public Accountants "for distinguished contribution to the literature of accounting," Jackson also was Dickinson Lecturer at Harvard University for the academic year 1946-1947.

United States Trade Facing Big Exports Cut In British Plan To Reduce Purchases

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—The United States is likely to be knocked for a larger part of its exports to the British pound sterling area than the 25 per cent cut announced by London.

At the present rate of our exports to Britain and her commonwealths, a 25 per cent cut would mean about $560 million loss to American traders, farmers, miners, and manufacturers. But some think this loss may run as high as $700 million a year. It may mean a loss of around 30 per cent of commonwealth trade and one-third or better of exports to the United Kingdom alone.

They figure it this way: Britain and her commonwealths, other than Canada, are pledged to trim one-fourth off their buying from the dollar area as a whole. That includes the United States, Canada and most of Latin America. But foreign trade sources predict that the drop in Canadian and Latin American trade with the sterling area will be cut much less than the trade with the United States.

The British aren't saying yet just how and where they plan to scrimp. But the trade figures involved, and the American products endangered by the new austerity look like this:

U.S. exports to the United Kingdom were running early this year at an annual rate of $710 million. One-fourth loss on that would be only $175 million. But Economic Cooperation Administrator Hoffman has estimated loss to American exporters at $250 million, or more than a third of the total.

American trade with the commonwealth nations, other than Britain and Canada, was running early this year at an annual rate of $1,545,000,000. One-fourth of that would be a loss of $386 million. But foreign traders here think that the commonwealths too are likely to trim buying from us more drastically than from others in the dollar area. And they think that the percentage of loss in the commonwealth trade may run higher than in United Kingdom trade, because British buying will be bolstered by ECA funds and orders.

Canada has estimated her loss of United Kingdom trade at about $75 million. She thinks her loss of commonwealth trade will be light. She hopes that wherever there is a choice Canadian goods will be favored over America.

Marshall Plan Affected
Such products could be lumber, newsprint and woodpulp, non-ferrous metals and wheat. Already the American farm bloc is busy trying to get congress to see that Marshall Plan dollars are spent for American surplus wheat, not Canadian.

Americans realize the British are acting out of necessity, but that doesn't keep it from hurting throughout the dollar area. With the exception of sugar and newsprint, most of the things the British propose to buy less of are offered for sale by Americans.

The American tobacco farmer has already learned that he has lost the sale of $20 million worth to the United Kingdom. How much more he'll lose in commonwealth sales he doesn't know yet, but it may be enough to put a quaver in the auctioneer's chant. ECA has hastened to authorize purchase of about $28 million of U.S. tobacco to bolster both European and U.S. tobacco men's morale.

U.S. lumbermen also learned today that ECA in authorizing purchase of $4 million of their products for the United Kingdom, at the same time took 16 million of Canadian lumber. The odds may be even shorter in the months ahead.
