WASHINGTON, July 21.-(#) The administration opened its House battle for a trial run crats not to "be led astray by the collusive combination of Re-publican-controlled farm organi-zations and Dixieerais."

Some of President Truman's best friends on Capitol hill join-ed a Democratic-Republican coa-lition bent on beating his farm bill bill.

hill. Rep. Gore (D-Tenn), usually an administration stalwart but now leading the opposition, drew the battle line with a substitute bill that proposes to kill the Brannan plan trial run. He pro-poses to continue the present farm program into 1950. Rep. Subath (D-III) led off for the administration with the talk of a "collusive combination." He called the substitute "this mon-grel Gore bill." The Illinois member, chairman of the House rules committee

The fillinois memory committee, of the House rules committee, declared the administration bill would relieve "the consumer of unconscionably high food prices," while protecting farmers' income. Sabath's opening statement de-fended the subsidy principle of the Brannan plan and he assaji-ed the Alken law passed by the Republican-controlled 80th Con-gress. This law, set to become effective in 1950 unless Congress decrease otherwise would permit decrees otherwise, would permit a flexible 60 to 90 percent of parity support program for ma-tor farm errors

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(P) A new congressional demand for deep probing into "Washington 5 percenters" coincided yester-day with word from a White House official that this is exact-ly what President Truman wants. This sources said the President

This source said the President has told Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary of the Ar-my Gray to "proceed with their investigations of so-called 5 per-centers" regardless of whom it might embarrass.

"Five percenters" is a name applied of late to persons who help get army contracts for man-ufacturers for a commission. Some of them have been ac-cused of saying they had influ-ence with high officials which made their efforts particularly worthwhile.

The White House official said Mr. Truman's attitude could be summed up in two familiar sayings:

"Let the chips fall where they may" and "it is up to the army to clean its own dirty linen." to clean its own dirty linen." Senator Mundt (R.S.D.) de-manded that the president's mili-tary aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, be required to tell "whether he was just windjam-ming or actually knows some-thing" about "five percenters." Vaughan has said he knows "about 300 persons in Washing-ton" engaged in contract opera-tions.

tinue rigid supports. The Gore substitute would continue present rigid 90 percent of parity price props and set aside the Alken law for a year.

The fishing resort has been the subject of much debate among Hardy's Don Lee friends; most of them asserting that there is not such a place and that Glenn uses the name as a dodge in order to success fully hide out during the hiatus. Doubters are believers now! The postman recently delivered a postcard from Hardy which read

"So! You didn't think there was such a place as Dinkey creek, did you? Yes, the "big one" is still getting away." And the card was postmarked . . . "DINKEY CREEK, CALIF., JULY 18."

Tonight at 7:30, "Here Comes the Bride" will introduce Miss Helen Solnika and Dean Bartlett in another half bour of courtship anecdotes and marriage plans. At 8 tonight, Don Lee KHJ's "Hopalong Cassidy" goes fishing for a school of land sharks who are forcing illiterate homesteaders to give up their land . . . and at 8:30, the "Fishing and Hunting Club of the Air," which reminds us of a fish story Dave Newell, panelist for KHJ-Mutual Don Lee's "Fishing and Hunting Club" submitted as evidence that fishermen the world over cannot be topped when it comes to telling whoppers. Here's the example:

'A deep sea fisherman and a fresh water angler were trying to outdo each other with their tales. "Why," boasted the salt water addict, "You should've seen the tarpon I caught last week. He measured at least....." "Shucks," interrupted his fresh water opponent, "I've been fishing long before you ever got the idea in your Why I've caught sharks in the Connecticut river big as a "Whatta you saying, mister," snapped his adversary. dirigible." "There ain't no sharks in the Connecticut river." "Course not," snapped Mr. Freshwater, "Not now. I caught every last one of 'em two years ago!"

Keds, Killer Says SEOUL, July 21-(F)-Korean newspapers yesterday published a purported statement from an army lieutenant that he killed Him Koo because the veteran po-litical leader had joined commu-nists in a plot against the gov-ernment. Kim was shot to death in his home June 26. The report was issued through the government's department of public information. It was the first time Korean newspapers had been informed officially of the circumstances of the shoot-ing. a getaway by air. Police later arrested Leo Mar-tial, 27, who told them his com-panion was drowned in the lake during the attempted getaway by air. Police, however, continued to search the area. Wednesday they arrested Victor Desmarais, 23. Both men were held without a charge. Police Chief Balah Bast sold

Police Chief Ralph Paul said martial told him his companion had jumped from the plane into the lake, taking the loot with him. The loot was between $2,000 and

The report quoted Lt. Ahn Doo HI, who presumably is recover-ing from a beating given him aft-er the assassination, as saying he shouted "You are an anti-Na-tional" as he fired four times at Kim with a U.S. 45 calibre re-voltar volver.

Racial Barriers Now YOU CAN GET A Hit In Congress PRECISION

WASHINGTON, July 21-(P)-Two west coast members of Con-gress, from whose states Japa-nese were removed during World War II, have joined in urging elimination of racial barriers to American cilizenship. Senator Magnuson (D.-Wash.) said the country should rid itself forever of "illogical prejudice" growing out of "race-conscious, outmoded laws." Rep. Miller (D.-Calif.) ex-pressed similar views. "If we are going to spread de-mocracy through the world, then we will have to practice democra-cy," he said.

Most of those quotas would be used for naturalization of for-eign-born persons now living in the United States. The largest group affected would be the thou-sands of Japanese-born persons now in this country who may not become citizens under pres-ent, laws.
