

HONOLULU, Aug. 4. — (P) — The threat to spread Hawaii's 96-day dock tie-up to the mainland ballooned today. A union spokesman said CIO Pacific coast longshoremen can walk out to support the strikers.

The reason, said Robert W. McElrath, is that the West coast contract never has been ratified by the rank and file of the International Longshoremen's Association, a 70,000-member union. He is the ILWU press spokesman here.

ILWU headquarters in San Francisco has advised the Pacific coast contract will not be ratified "if Hawaii employers and their agents in the territorial government continue with their strike-breaking program," McElrath said.

Coast angshoremen, he said in a radio address last night, have worked under a "back to work" memorandum since Dec. 5, 1948. That was the date of signing a contract ending a 95-day west coast dock strike.

In this memorandum, McElrath asserted, was to be effective until the ILWU membership approved or rejected the general contract.

In San Francisco, ILWU headquarters said only that a formal statement relative to the matter would be issued later today. Coast employers likewise declined immediate comment.

Negotiations Halt

Meanwhile, all negotiations to end the Hawaii tieup were at a standstill.

The Hawaii legislature, in the meantime, effort to pass a bill aimed at ending the strike by putting the government in the stevedoring business, recessed until Friday.

Both House and Senate yesterday bowed to Gov. Ingram M. Stainback's last minute plea to modify his earlier approval of banning the use of strikers or management employees. They passed resolutions to give the governor a free hand in hiring workers.

Before recessing House and Senate set up committees to draft an amendment to the House bill.

The 2,600 ILWU stevedores struck Hawaii's seven dock firms May 1 for an hourly raise of 32 cents.

ILWU President Harry Bridges is due here tomorrow from San Francisco. His office said only that his trip is in connection with the strike. Some observers were inclined to think, however, his coming might signal resumption of negotiations.

McElrath said an immediate referendum on the contract will be asked Aug. 22 at a longshore caucus of all Pacific coast ILWU locals. If the contract is voted "yes," the union would be "back to work" and on strike.

"One of the demands is that the strike in Hawaii be settled before they return to work," McElrath said.

One of the injured men in a truck-automobile collision near Troutdale, Ore., Wednesday was Jack L. Grunden, 22, now of Roseburg, who was the center of an American-Soviet incident in March, 1948, when he was shot and wounded by a Russian sentry in Vienna.

This morning's Portland Oregonian describes the incident as follows:

Grunden, private first class, U. S. Army, was shot in the chest on March 8, 1948, was shot in the back an left arm by a Russian sentry while in the international district of Vienna, during an incident, according to reports.

He was said to have been with two other soldiers and three Austrian girls on a sidewalk in front of a Russian headquarters hotel.

A sentry ordered the soldiers in the group to be refused. The second sentry was called and was said to have knocked one soldier to his knees, then another sentry fired. Gruden was wounded in the back and left arm.

He returned in May, 1948, to visit his mother, Mrs. Agnes Gruden, 101 Halsey place near Toddler street, in the Bremermerits at Madigan general hospital, Fort Lewis. He since moved to Roseburg and has continued
