

Port Of Umpqua Help Asked By Sportsmen In Obtaining Moorage For Small Boats

By S. S. SMILEY
(News-Review Correspondent)

Delegation of the Southwestern Oregon Sportsmen's association Tuesday asked the assistance of the Port of Umpqua commission in providing accommodations for launching and mooring small boats at Reedsport, Gardiner, and Winchester Bay.

This group consisted of Jack Hays of Westlake, president, M. H. Durbin, Ray Rookard, Ellis Delan, Byron Sarfling and Chas. Pfeiffer of Gardiner, and Warren Waggoner of Reedsport. They were told that they should take their problem in Reedsport to the city council, with the possibility that the city and port might work together toward a solution.

A committee from the port will inspect the condition at Gardiner, where a hoist recently erected by individuals for use by the public in lowering and raising small boats, is approximately 20 feet from the nearest water at extreme low tide.

Dredging Required

A small dredging job, or possibly digging a narrow channel by use of a towboat and letting its propeller churn out the mud, will be attempted soon if investigation indicates this type of work feasible. This would be only a temporary effort, to allow for the use of the hoist during the next

Marijuana Possession Jails Two At Pendleton

PENDLETON, Ore., Aug. 6.—Two Portland men, Francisco Salvadore Villegos, 29, and Jimmy Ralph Argenbar, 24, are in the county jail here awaiting a hearing before the U. S. Commissioner on a charge of possession of marijuana. State Police arrested the two at Stanfield junction and said they found eight pounds of the drug in the car the two occupied.

Villegos and Argenbar led the car and marijuana belonged to another person, officers said, but did not divulge the name of the alleged owner.

The sheriff's department here said Villegos is on parole at present from the State Penitentiary said he recently moved to Portland from Hawaii.

Two Gun Deaths Follow As Cop Kisses Divorcee

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A town policeman was shot to death Friday night as he kissed a divorcee. The woman's ex-husband was found dead Saturday with a bullet in his head.

A single shot fired through an open kitchen window killed town policeman Harold Winters, 44. A nine-hour search for the suspected killer ended with the discovery of the body of Frank Ziemann, 44, at Bridgehampton, 10 miles from the scene of the policeman's death.

There was a bullet wound in Ziemann's right temple and a .22 caliber rifle lay across his lap. State police said he apparently shot himself as he sat in his car.

Winters was shot in the kitchen of the home of Ziemann's divorced wife, Mary, 40. Mrs. Ziemann told police that Winters, in uniform and on duty, brought some sandwiches to the house last night. They had just finished a lunch of sandwiches and coffee and Winters was preparing to go back on patrol duty.

Police said he stood with his back to the window, kissing Mrs. Ziemann good-night when the bullet crashed into the back of his head.

Police said they had learned Ziemann recently had told friends that he planned to kill Winters, his ex-wife and himself.

Bank Reserve Limit Cut To Expand Lending

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Federal Reserve board Friday ordered cuts in bank reserve requirements to make an extra $1,800,000,000 available for lending.

Reserve requirements refer to the proportion of deposits that banks in the Federal Reserve system are required to post with non-lendable reserves.

The cut in reserves is the second in three months. It is the latest in a series of "easy credit" moves by the Reserve system to bolster an economy which has been slipping since last fall.

The order will permit banks to lend—if they desire and if they have loan applicants—a greater portion of their deposits than at any time since October, 1941, just a few weeks before Pearl Harbor.

few months. It was pointed out that the upper river, in the Gardiner and Reedsport vicinities, will soon be popular fishing grounds when the silverside run arrives.

The main interest of the group, however, was with conditions at Winchester Bay, which have been so bad during the past two months that it has at times been impossible even to drive out onto the dock for the purpose of unloading a boat from a trailer or top of a car.

The delegation was informed that the port commission was definitely interested in the project at Winchester Bay from two standpoints: first in getting a disposal area for the deposit of material when the channel and turning and mooring basins are dredged. The port is obligated to furnish such disposal area, and the project is approved, and awaiting an appropriation.

The port is also interested in developing the Winchester Bay locality for use by both commercial and sport fishing craft, and has some tentative plans in this connection.

Title Transfer Desired

However, nothing along this line can be accomplished while the title remains with the county, and the transfer of property there, from Douglas county to the Port of Umpqua, has never been made although tentatively agreed upon a few years ago.

The delegation expressed a desire to work with the port, and asked that if the title transfer is made at a future date, and the group be considered for any concessions that might be allowed on the dock, instead of making such a concession to an individual.

In this way, any profit made from the concession would be used to further the wildlife conservation and development.

A letter was read from Contractor Tom Lillebo, asking permission to use the south end of the port dock, now fenced off as unsafe for general use, for unloading trusses for the Smith River bridge. In his letter, Lillebo agreed to make any repairs needed at his own expense, and to hold the port free from responsibility while using it. This permission was granted.
