Gov. McKay Adds Advice To Civil Service Papers

SALEM, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Certification representing the completion of the first statewide civil service training courses in Oregon's history were handed personally by Gov. Douglas McKay Monday to 80 state employees. A bit of advice from the Governor accompanied the certificates and his congratulations.

Money, the Governor indicated, is not a satisfactory measure of success. "Try to be the best in your business or profession or in whatever line you want to follow," he advised, adding "I would rather be the best boot-

Strange Case Of Leaking Roof Told At Senate Probe Of "Five Percenters"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Paul Grindle, New England manufacturer, told senators Monday about the strange case of the leaking roof at the Foxboro trotting track clubhouse—and what caused it.

The track, located 19 miles from Boston, was built during 1946-47 with what Grindle described as $15,000 worth of help from James V. Hunt of Washington, key figure in the senate's "five percent" investigation.

Grindle, one of the opening witnesses before the senate investigating committee, said Hunt told him his story of how he helped get the track built.

Paul Bowser of Boston, president of the track, went to Hunt for help in getting the then-required government okay. Hunt went to Frank Creedon, then housing expediter now with the Hanford, Wash., atomic plant, and Creedon told him what to do about "getting around regulations."

The "loophole" was that a building could be moved onto a site and housing officials would approve alterations for it. So at Foxboro some small buildings were moved to the track site and remodeled into a single building for a clubhouse.

But Boston housing officials, when they inspected the job, declined the track had gone too far outside regulations. So they ordered the buildings separated by cutting three two-foot slots across the structure.

This let in the sky and the rain, Bowser protested. He notified Hunt of what had happened and Hunt again went to Creedon. Creedon called the Boston office by telephone and demanded to know if they were trying to make him "the laughing stock of the country."

Boston officials told Creedon the slots already had been cut, and it would cost too much to plug them.

Grindle, a Framingham, Mass., manufacturer, never did get around to saying whether the slots had been covered over. He did say Hunt told him he collected a $15,000 fee from the track.

MORE FUN THAN DOLLS
LONDON.—(AP)—Susan Pegg is an experienced gardener at only five years of age. In a big horticultural show here, she won a $20 prize for the best bunch of radishes grown by a boy or girl under 16.

Susan, who comes from Hugglescote in Leicestershire, started helping her father in his garden when she was two. She began her own gardening at three. "It's fun," she says, "and better than playing with dolls."

The American black bear still survives in many of the U.S. eastern states.

HARMONY IN RUSH HOUR
CHICAGO.—(AP)—Lines of automobiles were snarled in a rush hour jam at the edge of the loop. Impatient drivers kept blowing their horns. The traffic cop at the corner was almost—but not quite—at wit's end. He blew his whistle, raised his hands a la Toscanini and bellowed above the din: "Let's try it again. All together now in the key of C."
