Lothario Tells Court Of Plan To Run For Governor

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Swindlin' Sigmund Engel, 73-year-old gay hearted blade with a way with women, Monday announced plans to run for governor.

He said so in court where he denied taking money from Mrs. Florence Barrette, of Chicago.

"I have never seen Mrs. Barrette," he told Judge William V. Daly in felony court. "The charge is a scheme of Mr. Boyle (State's Attorney John S. Boyle) to be elected governor.

"He will not be the governor. I will be the governor.

Then, on urging of his attorney, Engel apologized for the remark about Boyle.

Engel came to court for a hearing of fugitive warrants from California and New York in addition to an accusation by Mrs.

Life Given Breezy Tang With Advent Of "Little Blowhard" In Home Circle

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Life has been a breezy round of gayety since "Little Blowhard" came to our house to stay.

The neighbors drop in unexpectedly. Lost friends from bygone years look us up and stay for an enchanted evening.

Yes, sir, the world has been making a beaten path to our doorway. And it's all because of "Little Blowhard." He's boomed our social standing so high I don't see how the Blue Book can leave us out another year—unless its editors are overlooking us for pure spite.

"Little Blowhard" is an air-conditioning unit. He specializes in making the good old summertime feel as good as the good old wintertime. He throws heat out the window as fast as he finds it; just loves to re-weather the weather.

For years Frances has been threatening to get one of these gadgets. And I've fought against it—on religious as well as financial grounds.

"If the Lord meant Manhattan to be cool in the summer," I objected, "he would float an iceberg up the East river and blow a wind across it to make everyone comfortable."

"Don't talk nonsense on your days off from work," said Frances. "Electricity comes from heaven, and they've figured out a way to use electricity to make a room cool. And, furthermore, the Lord helps those who help themselves."

From there the conversation drifted on to more important topics, like why hadn't I bought her an engagement ring 12 years ago and when, if ever, did I plan to get it? Soon there was a nice cool two-way breeze going.

Surprise And Scare
Well, I forgot all about the matter until the other day I came home and opened the bedroom door. I glanced at the window—and it looked like the radiator of a speeding car was crashing into the room.

Instinctively I hit the floor. Just then Frances came in and said:

"What are you doing, Rover boy, looking for termites?"

"Duck—or it'll hit you," I said, pointing at the window.

"Don't be a goose—that's our come at dusk and most of them leave before daybreak. They like to tease "Little Blowhard." They blow cigar smoke in his side, and he whooshes it out his front radiator in a filtered blue haze.

"I'm not running him down," said one guest, "but I know an air-conditioned up in the Bronx that can blow smoke rings. Of course, he's a year older than your 'Little Blowhard.'"

I've had a little trouble with another guest who wants to pour ice water and soap powder in "Little Blowhard's" side. Wants to see if he can manufacture snowflakes. But ginned if I'm going to turn my bedroom into a ski slope for anybody.
