

Permanent Foundation Of Kiwanis Stressed By Dist. Governor In Address Here

The Kiwanis code, which stresses aggressive citizenship and individual responsibility, was so well drafted when adopted 25 years ago at Denver it has gone unchanged, except for minor alterations. District Kiwanis Governor John Langenback of Raymond, Wash., recalled this fact in an address before the Roseburg Kiwanis Tuesday noon in the Hotel Umpqua.

Highlights of the recent Kiwanis International convention at Atlantic City were told by Langenback, who correlated statements of the convention speakers as they affect the work of Kiwanis.

No longer are we, the people of the United States, subject only to ourselves, nor to others, but to our Creator, the convention was told by a Lutheran minister, Langenback said, as the convention opened on a Sunday evening. We were dependent only upon ourselves, until the first world war took part of our resources, he reminded. Then were partially dependent upon others, and since the second world war took so much, we must turn to our Creator, if we are to conserve what material resources we have, said the speaker.

Clutch of Communism
He told of communism's growth, saying five million communists and three and one-half million Russian secret police control all countries behind the iron curtain. In charge of these are 78 commissars, who in turn are subject to 15 men, and these 15 control the destiny of the world. They may order peace or war. Communism is not a philosophy, but an international conspiracy, which must be exposed.

Another convention speaker, said Langenback, listed the aims of Kiwanis as: first, prepare youth by providing proper schooling; second, publicize our creed, our country's ideals; third, protect the dividends of capital, labor and management on a broader scale, that free enterprise might be strengthened by cooperative understanding, and fourth, expose those who would attempt to undermine us.

A Canadian speaker, Langenback said, put forth the claim that producing food and stabilizing population is more impor-

Typos' "Memorandum Contract" Is Target Of Attack At National Meet

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 18.—(AP) Leaders of the International Typographical union proposed Wednesday to tighten its work contract policy.

Target of the prospective action at the current 81st convention was the so-called "memorandum contract." Some ITU locals recently signed such agreements with employers. They drew rebukes by the ITU executive council.

President Woodruff Randolph referred to contract deviations in floor debate yesterday on an attempt to knock over the union's basic policy for dealing with employers.

Delegates drowned out a St. Louis resolution for a policy change with a resounding vote. There were no dissenting votes to adoption of a committee report spiking the resolution. The action backed Randolph's two-year fight against certain employers and the Taft-Hartley act. St. Louis members called for outright repeal of the bargaining formula as outdated and unsuccessful in maintaining harmony. Randolph, after referring to the 21-month ITU strike against Chicago newspapers and disputes elsewhere, warned that to abandon it would mean "complete surrender."

Randolph told the delegates that two big locals—San Francisco and Philadelphia—had yielded fundamental union rights in signing memorandum agreements for wages only.

From 13 northern California delegates came a resolution accusing the San Francisco local of violating ITU laws by signing the memorandum agreement. It said the San Francisco officers misrepresented that they negotiated contracts for other locals in the area.

Delegates heard a proposal to build up a $200,000 war chest to put into campaigns to defeat congressmen who voted for the Taft-Hartley act and to help elect members friendly to labor.

Unitarians Nominate Moderator, Plan Closer Unity

PORTLAND, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The American Unitarian association Tuesday nominated E. B. Mac Naughton, 68, Portland banker, publisher and college president, as its moderator.

His election at the association's annual business meeting in Boston next May is expected to be a formality. The present moderator, titular head of the loosely knit Unitarian churches, is Dr. George D. Stoddard, president of the University of Illinois.

Among policy matters under discussion by delegates here is transforming the association into a central denomination body, creating—in effect—"what might be called the Unitarian church of America," the planning commission report said.

The report favors the action. If delegates approve it, the matter will be presented to the 350 Unitarian churches. At present the association is an advisory body to the churches' 14 regional associations.

Mrs. John Jantzer was home from Eugene for the weekend. She returned Tuesday to continue acting on the federal district court jury there.

Jimmy Croff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Croff of Azalea, is recovering from a tonsillectomy performed early Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Johnson had as weekend guests, Mr. and Mrs. Robert West of San Diego, Calif. The Wests are now on their way to Lake Louise.

Washington, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Pacific Cod livers, now wasted by the ton, probably are worth for their oil and vitamins, the Fish and Wildlife service says.

A report by chemists F. R. Sanford, Seattle, and H. W. Nilsson, College Park, Md., said large-scale analyses of the cod livers during 1947 disclosed a high content of vitamin A and D.

As the season advanced from May to August, they said, the oil content of the livers increased while the vitamin A potency of the liver oil decreased.

"Hence, if only a limited space is available on board ship for storing the livers, they should be taken during the early part of the season," they said.

"Many tons of livers were discarded at sea as a waste by-product of the cod fishery. "By 1947, the price of vitamin A was high enough to warrant saving the livers.

"The results of the analyses indicate that Pacific cod livers are a marginal source of vitamin A which might be utilized at a profit under favorable market conditions."
