examinations are compulsory and that no exceptions will be made. However, first graders will be permitted to register if they can produce a certificate of examination from their family doctor and dentist.

Need No Examination
The "no exception" rule holds true even for those youngsters who have been thoroughly examined at some other time during their first five years.

Elliott said if children are not able to report to the proper school on the date listed above because of vacations or sickness, parents may make arrangements to have their youngsters examined at some other school. However, these children will probably have to wait until persons living in that area have been served, Elliott said.

Mrs. Kitchen outlined the procedure to be followed at the four schools as follows:
She will greet the youngsters and record such data as dates for vaccinations and inoculations, as well as what communicable diseases the youngsters have had. Another nurse will take the children's weight and height and see that they are prepared for the doctor's examination. To be conducted by Dr. A. B. Munroe. The youngsters will be guided from room to room by P. T. A. mothers.

Activities Of Boy Scouts At Camp Umpqua Summarized By Scoutmaster

(Ed. Note: Clair H. Pettit, assistant scoutmaster, Edenbower troop 133, has prepared a summary of events of the recent Boy Scout encampment at Camp Umpqua.)

By CLAIR H. PETTIT
Camp Umpqua, the new Boy Scout camp located 38 miles from Little river near Emile creek, concluded its week-long series August 7. Ten troops participated with 110 men and boys making up the roster. Douglas county troops attending included: Troop 106, Elkton; 104, Winchester; 7, Roseburg; 29, Oakland; 19, Sutherlin; 136, Dillard; 24, Myrtle Creek; 10, Smith River, and 133, Edenbower.

The camp staff consisted of Rollie Quam, director; Ed Stevenson, aquatics director; Don Shrader, cook counselor, and Robert Morton and Howard Jones, service staff.

Opening day, Sunday, July 31, was devoted to packing supplies and equipment to the half mile from the road and setting up camp. The site occupies a large meadow with little river marking the boundary on three sides. The camps were set up in a circle around the meadow. Sunday evening there was a get-together, get-acquainted campfire, singing, ghost stories and general meeting of troops.

Clean up followed breakfast Monday. At 10 o'clock swimming examinations were conducted. All scouts were classified as swimmers, beginners or non-swimmers as a safety measure.

Model Camp Established
In the afternoon a model camp was demonstrated. An altar fire place, built up off the ground on a platform, assured no-stoop cooking. A tepee style table with seating for a full outfit of eight boys, two types of mountain style tents, garbage disposal system and a pump for dish water, together with work tables and benches, completed a convenient and comfortable camp.

A "buddy swim" was next inaugurated, in which each swimmer places his buddy tag on a board so the lifeguard can tell at a glance how many are in the water.

Tuesday emphasized camp gadgets. Troop 133 had an excellent showing of beds built in trees. Of the entire troop, all but three boys were sleeping off the ground. One particular display features jungle hammocks, the first being four feet off the ground; the second, seven feet; the third, ten feet, and the fourth, 12 feet. A ladder built on the spot gave access to the different levels.

Swimming And Axe Use
Ed Stevenson demonstrated the correct procedure for a troop swim. Safety precautions were explained, including the buddy system, lifeguard and watch-guard and the chain rope saving system. All troops had to be shown the troop swim method before permitted to go on hikes or hold private swims.

More demonstration areas were shown Tuesday afternoon. The axe yard was first. Here they observed the proper method of sharpening and handling an axe and the contact method of cutting wood was explained. Tent pegs made by the contact method served as a practical demonstration.

A nature study course on edible plants was conducted by Marion Gunter, Smith River troop chairman, who was able to identify 26 different plants growing within a radius of 100 feet, all fit for food.

Members of the Roseburg Choral society, their families and guests and any persons interested in joining the group are invited to a picnic Monday, Aug. 22, at 6:30 p.m. at Umpqua park.

President Roy Barnhart said this will be the first get-together of the group prior to the start of rehearsals Sept. 12. After that date rehearsals will be held each Monday at 7:30 p.m. at junior high school.

Charles A. Ricketts, at the request of the society, has again consented to direct the group. Preparations will be started early to present Handel's Messiah in December, said Barnhart. Copies have already been ordered. The society will handle only the choral selections and not attempt to give the complete production. A large spring concert is also planned, he said.

Those planning to attend the picnic are asked to bring a covered dish or sandwiches. The society will furnish coffee.
