Workers Seek To Bring Man's Wife

NEW ORLEANS — (P) —
Transportation workers in four countries are racing against time in an effort to reunite an American war veteran and his German wife and child.

The veteran Edward Reisbeck, 27, of Portland, Ore, is nervously waiting here, hoping his family will arrive in the United States by midnight Sept. 21—the deadline war brides must make to enter the country without going through quota procedures. And Reisbeck says, "they tell me it would take five years to bring them in under quota."

Reisbeck married while serving in the army of occupation in Germany. He came to this country

In desperation he came to New Orleans, but steamship lines here old him the same story.

He had a rebate on the fare he had paid the Chicago steemshin office and thought maybe he could arrange air transportation.
But that, he found, would cost $111 more than steamship fare and he didn't have it.
