

Fall Styles' Opening Viewed By Thousands

timepiece, which was apparently none the worse for its sudden aerial flight to the sidewalk, and brought it to the speakers' platform, where John Hardiman, representing Lawson's Jewelers, examined it. Still in running order, the watch was exchanged for a less traveled timepiece.

Lou Franco and the Western Jamboree band took over the speakers' stand after that and the light-footed element started to dance in the street.

The tightly-packed mass of humanity that blanketed Jackson street south almost to Cass street, and north almost to Washington, welcomed the opportunity to disperse and observe the decorative efforts of Roseburg merchants.

A display of new automobiles that extended nearly two city blocks drew the attention of not a few sightseers.

Among stores drawing steady crowds were Lawson's, where nearly a half-million dollars in diamonds were exhibited.

Crowds packed available restaurants for snacks and coffee during the fall show. At 10 o'clock, many sightseers topped off the evening by attending the dance at the army.

Others went home, apparently convinced that Roseburg takes a back seat to no community in civic achievements and commercial enterprise.

Top Display Listed

Mabel Lewis' dress shop was the unanimous choice of three judges as having produced the outstanding window display of the fall opening.

Second choice was Ott's and Rickett's music store, third choice was Herman's men's store and fourth choice was Weber's Bakery.

Three competent, impartial judges, selected by the News-Review, rated Mabel Lewis' exhibit as exceptional on all of the following counts: Thought and preparation, effort, quality and performance.

A display of new fall fashions, preceded by two models showing formal gowns as worn in Roseburg 70 years ago, elicited praise from spectators. A monologue delivered in rhyme accompanied the fashion showing, which lasted 15 minutes before the cycle was completed.

Ott's and Rickett's, in the opinion of the judges, held the crowd's attention, was pleasing and entertaining and offered an excellent display of talent.

Two hours of music was furnished by Mrs. Lois Ann Stewart, seated at a piano, equipped with Solovox, and Mrs. Esther Geddes, completing the duet on a model piano. Approximately 40 pieces were rendered by the couple. The pianos were arranged in show windows on each side of the store entrance.

Herman's men's store featured an excellent seasonal display combined with good lighting. Men's fall fashions were well arranged and ranged from deer hunting garb to new fall suits. Appropriate background decorations tied in the merchandise.

Originality and excellent humor was the opinion of the judges in contemplating the Weber bakery display. Cleverly-fashioned bread animals with legs of bread sticks and names lettered on the sides, passed in review, parade style, before a tiny baker driving a cart fashioned from a bread loaf with doughnuts for wheels.

Due to technical difficulties, pictures of the four winning window displays will not be printed in the News-Review.

Francis Kenyon Funeral Arranged to the false illusory security of half a world."

Tsiang did not say whether his speech would be followed by formal charges against Russia, but this was the impression left by his declaration.

He asserted the Soviet union already had obtained more in Manchuria than Czarist Russia ever tried to seize. He added:

"In addition, the Soviet union, through the Chinese Communist party, has an instrument and a lever with which to undermine the independence and integrity of China and the peace of the Far East."

Dr. Tsiang represented the second of the big five powers—each with veto power in the security council—to present a statement on policy. U. S. Secretary of State Acheson did not mention China when he presented the United States views in the debate.

Shippers Will Discuss Rail Car Shortage

Thompson, has already received the approval of a large number of shippers in other parts of the state and should be of interest to all Douglas county operators.

"It will be helpful if you come to the meeting prepared to state what your own experience has been in securing cars during the past several weeks, and in previous years when shortages have occurred," he said.

He emphasized that forest industries are by far the most important sources of income, taxes and jobs in Douglas county, and any interference with normal operations affects the entire economy of the city and surrounding area.

Surviving are her widower, Terrel Myrtle Creek; a son, Curtis Lee, Las Cruces, N. M.; a daughter, Mrs. Gerry Gant, Roswell, N. M.; her mother, Mrs. Sam Prather, Alamogordo; five brothers, George, Jack, Buster, Ray and Owen Prather, all of Alamogordo; two sisters, Mrs. Rose Langford, Alamogordo, and Mrs. Anna Schwabe, Mexico City.

The body will be shipped tonight by the Roseburg Funeral home to Alamogordo for funeral services and interment.

Blackmer Ends Exile To Face Tax Evasion Counts

died in 1944 at the age of 83. Sinclair, who had been accused of passing along more than $200,000 in liberty bonds to Fall in exchange for a lease on government oil fields, was exonerated. Later, however, he served seven months in Washington district jail for contempt of the Senate in refusing to answer questions at a hearing in 1929.

Sinclair, now 73, is president of the Sinclair Oil Corp., with offices in New York.

Had Misadventure

Before his exile, Blackmer became known as the "Child of the Gods" for his incredible financial success. A former business associate in Denver once said: "Blackmer could make a million dollars on a desert island."

Blackmer's tax troubles mirror his vast wealth. In 1932, while in exile, he paid the treasury department $3,670,784 in income tax—allegedly unreported. That action settled a civil suit for back taxes in the years 1920 through 1923. Also in 1932, he paid $60,000 fines in two contempt of court charges for refusing to answer subpoenas.

Still on file against him are criminal charges of perjury and income tax evasion returned by a grand jury in Denver in 1928.

Despite the continental splendor of his exile, friends say Blackmer has yearned to return to Denver. During his overseas journey, his son, Myron and daughter, Mrs. Eric Kistler, both Denver, visited him frequently.
