PORTLAND, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Oregon cities should be planning for the growth bound to come in the next 50 years, George W. Peavy, Corvallis Mayor, said here.

He told the joint convention of the League of Oregon Cities and the Oregon Finance Officers' association that the population will have doubled by the year 2,000.

Peavy, president of the league, also urged that voters take more interest in civic affairs, lest the "quick-witted crook" and dishonest politician take over the community.
