

Miner Who Sued Fund Trustees Gets Lots Of Woe

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 6.—(AP)—Troubles piled up Tuesday for a veteran miner who sued the United Mine Workers pension and welfare fund trustees. He has been expelled from the union. He lost his local UMW job and was harassed when he appeared on a downtown street. Guards are standing by his home to prevent violence.

The miner is George Livengood, 54, of nearby Crows Work, former financial secretary of UMW local 6308.

His troubles go back two weeks when he filed his federal court suit in Washington, D. C., in which he demanded an accounting of funds from the UMW pension and welfare program.

On his first appearance in Uniontown, a crowd of gesticulating, shouting men quickly surrounded him. He slipped away before any blows were struck. Livengood was ousted from his union after the local charged he entered the civil courts "before exhausting his rights in the UMW."

A veteran miner who has been receiving pension benefits because of a heart ailment, Livengood said he filed the suit in a desire "to protect the workers from the uncontrolled administration of the fund."

Hiss Asks Venue Change For 2nd Perjury Trial

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Alger Hiss wants his second perjury trial shifted from New York City to the U. S. district court in Vermont, on the ground he cannot now get a fair trial here.

The former State department official, whose first trial ended last July 8 with the jury deadlocked eight-to-four for conviction, announced his plan in a statement.

Government prosecutors said immediately they will oppose the transfer.

Hiss faces retrial next Monday on a charge that he lied when he denied before a federal grand jury that he had ever given State department secrets to Whittaker Chambers, self-styled former Communist courier, for transmission to prewar Soviet spies.
