

Presenting Roseburg BPW Leaders O. & C. Timber Is Offered For Sale At Auction

Jean Whittenburg was president of the Roseburg Business and Professional Women's Club, for 1947-8.

As junior past president of B.P.W.C., Jean is in charge of arrangements for tonight's homecoming dinner at the Roseburg Country club, 6:45 p. m. Jean came to Roseburg from Colorado in 1943, joining B. P. W. C. here. She is a homemaker as well as a business woman, and the mother of three sons.

Government Purchase Of Dried Prunes Urged

DALLAS, Ore.—(AP)—The Polk county prune growers have asked the government to buy small dried prunes, saying there was virtually no commercial market for them.

The growers were notified by Oregon congressmen that the federal government is considering buying prunes for the school lunch program.

To make snaps fast, use at least four or five stitches in each hole. Buttonhole stitches hold snaps better than ordinary stitches.

Short Guide To Control Of Bang's Disease Issued

You can keep brucellosis out of your dairy herd if you pay attention to the "Do's" and "Don'ts" outlined by authors of a new four-page folder recently issued by the O.S.C. extension service.

It is extension circular No. 533, entitled "You Can Stop Brucellosis." As with other college publications, copies are available free through county extension offices or by writing direct to the college.

Brucellosis, frequently called Bang's disease, affects both cows and humans. The human form of the disease, spread by contact with infected animals or through unpasteurized milk, is undulant fever, the circular authors relate.

Among "don'ts" outlines are: Don't purchase animals from unknown sources; don't make herd additions except from clean herds; don't let your cows run at large; and don't harbor stray animals, including dogs.

"Do's" include having your dairy herd blood-tested regularly.

KDND DIAL-LOG

Say you might make that next hunting trip in the State of Washington? AP news-wire discloses that it'll cost you no less than fifty smackers. The non-resident hunting and fishing license fee was formerly $25. The Commission said it raised the fee to bring it in line with Oregon's charge for non-residents. Oregon now charges $25 for a non-resident hunting license; $10 for a non-resident fishing license and $15 for a non-resident deer tag. The Washington increase is effective immediately, and the fishing license for Oregon non-residents will go to $15 on Jan. 1. Commissioners put it this way: "We are not trying to start a race, but we insist on equal treatment." So there.

George and Brooksie

Our good friend "Esther" arrived in Roseburg last Friday night after her across-the-ocean jaunt to her Norway homeland. She's still a bit tired after her long trip, but it won't be long before you'll be greeted by her once again in the Umpqua Hotel Coffee Shop. No more will the Umpqua Hotel staff hear: "When's Esther coming back?"

"The Cisco Kid" rides guard on a special shipment attempting to break the jinx of the "Hoodoo Driver" tonight at 7:30. At 8, a young newspaper boy and his wife, suspected of stealing a valuable diamond bracelet, present George Valentine's case in the dramatization of "Everybody Makes a Mistake," on "Let George Do It." In the picture above, George is explaining to Brooksie the low-down on the science of "moulage." He secured his knowledge of this portion of scientific criminal investigation which has to do with building up evidence from footprints, etc., in the Los Angeles Sheriff's Crime Laboratory. A physical resemblance between two cousins, one a famous actor, backgrounds a macabre tale titled "First Act of Murder" on "Murder by Experts" tonight at ten. John Dickson Carr is the host.
