It is this type of hous-ing that many of the would-be-renters are turning to invest their money rather than pay high rents.

rents.

This is borne out by the greatly increased number of apartments listed for rent, with no apparent rush to snap them up. This is in marked contrast with only a short time ago when rentals of any kind were difficult to find.

In some cases, pre-control leases are operating to prevent rent hikes. However, the use of the lease between landlord and tenant has never been widespread

7,000 Volunteer Aides; More Apply

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.
WASHINGTON.—How would you like to establish the climate of the U.S. A.? About 7,000 citizens collectively are doing just that, every day, every season. They are the Weather Bureau's voluntary weather observers. Twice a day they record the sky condition, the temperature, the wind direction, the pressure and the rain and snowfall in their area on special instruments loaned them by the Weather Bureau. Once a month they send their data to section centers in 42 states, which in turn forward the record to Weather Bureau processing centers.

These weather enthusiasts, says the Weather Bureau, are establishing our climate in a very real sense—helping to determine just what it is. They've been at it ever since 1870, when the first in this community. Because it is a university town, landlords have never had any trouble renting their property and, in general, avoided tying themselves up for long periods of time. It is possible that the lease may become more popular in the near future.

Mrs. Cellers said the family's Mrs. Cellers said the family's biggest worry now is where to plant the seeds next year. They're heping for a good night's sleep, undisturbed by juvenile prowlers. And when they take in an occasional movie, the Cellers don't want to have to check off one or two melons to roving youngsters.

But if it weren't for the thousands of scattered reports which the volunteers send in from plains and mountains the Weather Bureau would have a rough time piecing together the changing picture of the atmosphere.

Job Proves Attractive
The amateurs themselves love the Job, even if it does demand a constant vigil on their instruments and during periods of storm and flood, answering telephone queries from their neighbors, sometimes as many as 50 a day. The Weather Bureau says many more citizens apply for the volunteer job than can be accommodated. And some old-time observers have been at it for more than 55 years. Many pass their duties on to their sons.

Although night raiding by youngsters made actual tabulating difficult, the Cellers report 23 large cantaloupes ripened on one particularly prolific vine.

However, not all these melons were consumed at the Cellers' table. The melons were secreted carefully among the thick corn stalks but were discovered "more than once" by night-raiding youngsters.

Mrs. Cellers said the seeds had been purchased in bulk at Wharton's Seed store in Roseburg.

We're sure you've already met some of the finest people you'll ever know, Roseburg is famed for its hospitality, its friendliness.

You probably realize that Roseburg has for did have) an acute housing shortage. Until a few months ago it was almost impossible to find a suitable home or apartment for rent. Until recently the price of new homes was at the usual post-war level.

To ease this housing shortage and provide a safe investment last year Roseburg Homes, Incorporated, commenced construction of a huge housing development—180 two and three bedroom homes were planned, ground was broken and foundations were poured. This project and the community was named Cloverdale park. Now the development is near completion, streets are paved, a water system is installed, the sewer system is completed, individualized homes are finished—many have

We, with many others, think that Claverdale Homes are the finest for the money that you can buy. There are many, many advantages. Construction is excellent . . . the homes are not only F. H. A. approved—they were inspected and approved by not less than three agencies during construction. Every modern convenience is included . . . some homes have real wood burning fireplaces . . . all have forced air heating systems, large electric water heaters . . . scores of advantages and improve-

Down payments and monthly terms place Claverdale Homes within the reach of almost everyone. The renter, we believe, cannot afford NOT to buy a Cloverdale Home.

We ask you to see for yourself . . . as a new resident of Roseburg you want, and deserve, the best our city has to offer. We'd like you to prove to your own satisfaction that Cloverdale Park Homes are the best you can buy in Douglas County. Drive out to Cloverdale Park (see map below) or just phone 1566 and we'll furnish the transportation. No obligation in
