Not present when the pictures were taken were Engineer Carl Arndt, Announcer Del McKay, Laura Fett, commercial department; and Charles Capps, new addition to the commercial department from Klamath Falls. (Pictures by Paul Jenkins)

Vets Have Preference In Idaho Land Opening

SALEM, Oct. 20.—(AP)—World War II veterans have preference in acquiring 50 farms near Caldwell, Idaho, the State Veterans department said today.

The land totals 4,489 acres of irrigable public land. It is undeveloped and mostly covered with sagebrush. It is good for dairying, and production of alfalfa, pasture, clover, wheat, oats, barley and peas.

Applications must be filed before next January 3 with the Bureau of Reclamation, Notus, Idaho.

Applicants must have $3,500 in cash or assets.

From Roseburg were George Erickson, senior high principal; R. R. Brand, junior high principal, and Principals Lyle Eddy of Fullerton, Roy Crane of Benson, Earl Ladd of Riverside and Eli Hall of Rose school.

Conservation in school maintenance and upkeep was the principal topic of discussion throughout the two-day program.

Governor Douglas McGee greeted the administrators, who attended the meeting from over the state.

An Associated Press report concerning the meeting says: "Oregon's school heads think the general public should take more interest in planning school courses."

The school administrators also adopted a resolution asking the public to help in planning school programs which involve the community.

O. O. Saban, Springfield, was elected president, succeeding Wendell Van Loan, Corvallis. Lawrence Moffitt, Josephine county superintendent, is the new vice president. D. A. Emerson, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The following were named as presidents of groups within the association: Lynn Johnson, Portland, elementary principals; Lester Harris, Medford, high school principals.

Poverty, Hunger Greatest Problems Confronting India And Pakistan

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

When Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was asked by a small New York schoolgirl what his country's worst problem is, he replied with hesitation:

"Poverty. We must have food for our people."

There in eight plain words Nehru summed up the paramount task he faces as leader of India's three hundred millions. No evasion; no effort to gloss over a situation which men of smaller caliber might have found embarrassing on their first visit to a foreign land. Just a blunt admission of a tragic fact.

India's greatest burden is stark hunger, due to poverty. The same can be said of her sister state of Pakistan with its population of 100,000,000. It is no exaggeration to say that the majority of the people in the vast Indian subcontinent always are hungry. And of course, the plague of hunger haunts China and other oriental lands. The western world doesn't know the half of the trials of the east.

About 70 percent of the 400,000,000 people in India and Pakistan are dependent on agriculture, and the average farming family doesn't get enough to eat. The farmers struggle with antiquated methods on land which has been worn out through countless generations of tillage.

I have visited much in Indian villages and found conditions appalling. The homes are little mud huts, which are fearfully dirty and have no sanitation. Probably there isn't even a single "back-house" of that sturdy type known to the western world. Cowdung, gathered by the women with their hands, is plastered on the outside walls of the huts to dry for fuel. Human beings and animals live pretty much together. There are few watches or clocks. The members of the family probably go to bed in the dark because their only lights, if any, are open dishes with oil and wick, such as used for thousands of years.

Amidst all this awful squalor, death and birth do their rounds—and the one who dies is lucky.

Doctors—They are mostly sadhus, or spirit doctors, who work their "cures" through incantations and other weird practices. Whether you live or whether you die is a matter of luck.

And these poor people always are hungry. You can see it in their faces and starved bodies. Hosts of them have only one meal a day and that consists of gruel made from a little grain.

So there you have some of the sordid story. Naturally conditions in the towns and cities are better, though there is much poverty and consequent under-nourishment among them.

As Nehru says, this poverty is his greatest problem, just as it is the greatest problem of India's sister state of Pakistan. Its solution is the foundation on which he must build the new and independent India.

What are his chances of success in this great undertaking? As the signs read he will go far.

I have spent a good deal of time traveling about the peninsula during the past 33 years, and India is on the move. She has made tremendous strides this last generation.

Cloves were such an expensive luxury to western civilization at one time that the ships of explorer Ferdinand Magellan sold a cargo of them for more than the cost of a three-year expedition.
