

2 Men Jailed In Delinquency Case

Kenneth Lewis McFarland, 20, Melrose route, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child, was bound over to the grand jury upon arraignment Monday in justice court, reported Justice of Peace A. J. Geddes.

McFarland, arrested by city police, waived a preliminary hearing and his bail was set at $2,500. He was jailed in default.

According to Chief of Police Calvin Baird, McFarland and Frances Joe Evans, 23, of Tenmile are accused in the case involving 13 and 15-year-old girls. They allegedly picked up the girls one in Roseburg and one near Winchester, and after attending a dance at Tenmile drove on to Crescent City, Calif., before returning here.

Evans waived preliminary hearing Friday on the delinquency charge and was held under $2,500 bail, said Baird.

Pep Talk To Democrats Given By Sen. Flegel

providing better service to local shippers. He pointed out local residents are paying twice as much for power rates as users in Eugene.

"Until you can get power rates comparable to other cities in Oregon, no new industries will settle here," Flegel warned.

He cited the Columbia Valley administration as the answer to Douglas county's power shortage. He pointed to both the Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams as concrete proof that cheap power would be available.

According to Flegel, public power builds large enough facilities to attract business, while private power doesn't expand its facilities until a demand is created.

Under CVA, Flegel said, when land is taken off the tax rolls, the administrators are required to appropriate funds to make up the loss. However, Flegel added, low Bonneville power has attracted "in the neighborhood of $300,000,000 in taxable values due to the influx of new business attracted by the low rates."

Flegel declared the same people who fought the Bonneville and Coulee dams are now fighting CVA.

He declared CVA would pass in the next session of congress.

Max Fryc, Ex-Announcer For KRNR, Passes Away

Max Fryc, 29, one-time announcer for KRNR, died last night at the Portland Veterans hospital after an illness of about five weeks.

Fryc was employed at KRNR prior to the recent war. He served as an army lieutenant overseas, and was wounded on Okinawa. On his return from the service, he was employed by the Southern Oregon Publishing company station at Klamath Falls, and for the past four months by KPOJ, Portland.

He was married to the former Betty Childers, whose uncle and aunt are Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Raffel of Roseburg. Surviving, besides the widow, are three small children, Denny, 5; Carolyn, 2 1/2; and Barbara Jean, 1 1/2. His parents reside at Eugene.

Retrieved Eggs Pose Problem For Police

What to do with 40 dozen eggs was bothering the police department today.

The eggs were "ammunition" taken from a car of Halloween pranksters last night, said Chief Calvin Baird. The eggs were being used to throw at cars, until the officers put an end to the play.

In general, things were very orderly in town, aside from the usual minor pranks. No damage to any extent was reported. The Neewollah parade occupied the attention of the youngsters in the early part of the evening, and "trick or treating" was much in evidence throughout town. Extra police patrolled the city.

One drunken driver and one "drunk" were cited into court. State police reported nothing unusual, but the postoffice reported many rural mail boxes knocked over.

To Visit Chapter—Mrs. Magdalena Butler, North Bend, new state department president of Gold Star Mothers, will be a speaker at the Roseburg chapter, American Gold Star Mothers Inc., meeting to be held Friday, Nov. 4, at 2 o'clock at the armory. Another speaker will also be present and refreshments will be served. The meetings have been changed from the first and third Thursdays of every month to the first and third Fridays of the month.

holding the per capita tax to the CIO.

Fitzgerald said that at a meeting with Murray and other CIO leaders on Sunday, the U. E. was given "plainly to understand that the main business of the CIO convention would be a Red baiting spree for the gratification of the anti-labor commercial press and the politicians to whom the CIO now subordinates itself."

"This can benefit no one but the employers," Fitzgerald said.

"It is CIO policy to fritter away the organized strength of the working people and to whip them into a political lineup," Fitzgerald said in a statement distributed at a news conference.

"It is CIO policy to trade off the power of the working people to fight for their demands in exchange for dubious and meager favors from the politicians."

"A perfect case in point is the action of the administration board of inquiry for the steel industry, which sabotaged the wage negotiations of every union in 1948 and left the workers of the steel industry with the job of striking to obtain even the meager award accorded them."

"The U. E. repudiates the policy of begging for favors from politicians as a substitute for organizing the people to fight for their own interests."

"Since the CIO was organized, the U. E. has paid two and three quarters million dollars into the CIO," Fitzgerald continued. "Dues money by the workers of our industry has been handed over by CIO leadership to finance the ambitions of repudiated men whom those very workers have rejected for national office, for district office and in many cases for office within their own locals."

"Dues money paid by the membership of U. E. has been used by CIO leadership to help raid U. E., to disrupt U. E. and to defeat the expressed will of the U. E. membership."

Fitzgerald said that the dues would be withheld "until such time as the CIO returns to the principals of free, democratic, industrial unionism."

Murder Count Filed Against Joseph Kiel

scene by the Riddle police chief, said the body had apparently been thrown over the south side of the bridge, at a point 40 feet from the east approach.

The bridge spans the South Umpqua river. Marks on the body indicated Tucker had been strangled, the district attorney reported.

John Kiel, brother of the accused, telephoned state police at Roseburg Sunday and told them of his suspicions, following a visit of his brother to Ashland that day, after the alleged murder had been committed. The defendant was arrested in Myrtle Creek Sunday night.

No further developments in the case were reported today. A person identified as Al Lamp, reportedly to have been seen in Kiel's company Saturday night, was being sought by authorities yesterday, Davis said. Whether he has been located has not been revealed.

Funeral services for Tucker will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Myrtle Creek Methodist church. Interment will follow in the Odd Fellows cemetery. Long and Orr mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

a temporary eight cents a month to a permanent dime.

That would help make up financial loss if the three to a dozen left-wing unions facing removal actually are tossed out at this week's convention.

CIO president Philip Murray left little doubt that was his intention at the convention's opening session yesterday. He said the CIO would "cleanse" itself at this convention of left-wing elements adhering to communist policy.

The big fight over ouster could erupt today or tomorrow on the convention floor. The constitutional changes recommended by a committee headed by Frank Rosenblum of the Amalgamated Workers would be enough to stir the left-wing leaders.

Bethlehem Assents To CIO Pension Demands

hem's terms was a minimum $100 monthly pension for all employees with 25 years service reaching the age of 65 or over. Those with 20 years will receive $85. After 15 years, $65.

Some said Murray will receive as much as $250 a month.

With the exception of employee payments to federal social security, the company will pay all—about nine cents per worker hourly—of the pension costs. Unlike the other steel firms, Bethlehem has been financing a pension system for 26 years but at a lower rate providing for around $50 a month.

On social insurance—death, sickness, accidents, hospitalization—employees put 21 cents an hour into a fund and the company matches it. Employees had been paying all social insurance costs in the past but the exact figure was not announced.

Differs From Board's Plan
This type of agreement made comparison with the President's steel fact finding board's recommendations for a settlement difficult.

The board's cost estimate was three cents lower on pensions. It had figured about six cents an hour. But the benefits were the same: $100 minimum.

Bethlehem's five cents an hour on insurance cost contrasted with the board's recommendation of four cents.

One difference is that the take home pay will be slightly less because of the contributory feature of Bethlehem's new insurance program.

Under the board's program, the company would pay for everything, leaving pay checks intact. Pensions paid under the plan are reduced by amounts payable under the federal social security act.

The agreement, subject to approval by the firm's stockholders, is extended to Dec. 31, with a re-opening on wage rates on Dec. 31, 1950.

Other Accords Expected
The government officials said that now that a break has come in the steel strike, definite peace moves may be expected in coal because of the close relations of the two basic industries.

"We broke the line," Murray exulted. "From here on we move with a firmness of purpose and a determination that victory will attend our efforts."

The reaction was swift. Government Mediation Chief Cyrus S. Ching said he trusted "this settlement will lead to industrial peace in the steel industry generally, at a very early date."

U. S. Steel Corp., the biggest steel producer, which has been holding out for workers paying part of pension costs, invited talks with Murray's union U. S. Steel's president, Benjamin F. Fairless, said "of course we will study the Bethlehem settlement."

Officials expected Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and the Aluminum Company of America may be among the first strike-bound firms to seek settlement terms after Bethlehem.

A new steel strike started shortly after Murray sent out orders for Bethlehem's 80,000 workers to return to their jobs. The new walkout was at the Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp., where 12,500 of Murray's men quit as negotiations collapsed.

Government mediators were considering issuing an invitation to bring coal peace talks to Washington. Negotiations between John L. Lewis' striking miners union and southern coal operators were to resume today at Bluefield, W. Va.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said at Cincinnati that it is now President Truman's duty to use the Taft-Hartley act court injunction powers to end the coal strike. Last
