Hollywood and the romance magazines will be unhappy to learn that secretaries are not interested in having office romances with their bosses. This is the word that came out of the convention of the National Secretaries Association in Washington, D. C. One young lady said, "Most secretaries are glad to leave their bosses after eight hours." This is a nasty blow to the modern Cinderella story. If it is taken seriously it will ruin more movies than loud popcorn bags do. Can you imagine crowds enjoying a show where the gal's idea is to get through work and rush home to curl up with a good book?

Centennial celebration honoring the pioneers who came to Yoncalla in the early 50s will be sponsored by the Yoncalla Civic club next July 2, 3 and 4.

The Yoncalla Saddle club will also join the observance by staging a three-day rodeo next year, in connection with the centennial event. Mrs. Annie Kruse will write a book recalling the pioneers. Already, citizens of Yoncalla are collecting historical material to display during the centennial.

The celebration will be one of the largest events Yoncalla has sponsored in many years and is expected to be one of the finest Douglas county has ever seen. At a recent meeting of the Yoncalla Civic club, the following were elected:

President, Mrs. Annie Kruse; first vice-president, Mrs. Louise Gains; second vice-president, Mrs. Fred Kruse; secretary, Mrs. Olive McKee; and treasurer, Mrs. Dora Benner.

RIVAL CAFES COOPERATE
CHICAGO—(AP)—George Drake and Marion Isbell run restaurants just around the corner from each other. They are competitors. Yet they recently ran a series of six advertisements—three apiece—in Chicago newspapers in which each paid tribute to the other as a good friend and fine neighbor.

One of Isbell's ads set forth: "In order to get along with the rest of the world we must first learn to get along with one another—with those in our immediate vicinity, our neighbors. George and I have learned."

Audience Sees Cancer Operation On Color Video

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—Watching a surgeon rescue a dying woman from the tentacles of cancer is an unforgettable sight.

I had this experience over the weekend along with a number of newsmen and 1,000 doctors invited to the demonstration by the American Cancer society.

It was done by television, using a color process developed by the Columbia Broadcasting system. And it proved—whatever the immediate commercial future of color television may be—that this form of video already is of value in teaching surgical techniques.

The viewing screens were set up in the Baltimore hotel. The television camera itself was 25 brackets away, trained on an operating table in Memorial hospital.

The surgeon was Dr. Alexander Brunswick, a famous cancer expert. The woman, about 51, was unidentified. She had agreed in advance to allow the operation to be televised, hoping it would be of value to the assembled doctors.

"This is in no sense a cure," explained Dr. Brunswick. "Her case is hopeless. Radiation has failed. She is in pain, and this operation will relieve that."

He spoke through a microphone attached to his throat. The camera showed only his hands and the patient's abdomen as he swiftly made his incision.

Huge Mass Removed
Opening the body cavity, he discovered the malignant tumor had spread through most of the woman's lower organs. The tissues stood out in clear relief under color television. But whenever the camera switched back to black-and-white, they came almost indistinguishable.

Quickly, cutting here, putting clamps there, he freed the malignant mass. Its size drew a gasp from the audience. To remove it the surgeon had to take out the cervix, bladder, and part of the colon and intestine.

"Now we have taken out all the tumorous tissue visible to the naked eye," said Dr. Brunswick. His inference was clear—there were other malignant ar-eam impossible to reach with the knife. The blue-black cancer spots on the excised organs showed clearly on the screen.

"There is some question as to whether radical operations of this nature are worthwhile," the surgeon said, calmly, as he sewed up the severed blood vessels.

"But we learned something from them. And some patients have lived more than two years—are still alive—after such operations."

"The patient is relieved of pain and restored to usefulness—for a time at least. In any case we don't philosophize about it too much. We do for each individual what we can."

And the picture faded from the screen as the surgeon went about the routine task of sewing up his patient.

Later that day I sat before another TV set and watched Notre Dame sink the Navy at football, 40 to 0. It's an eerie thing—television, catching a life and death drama in the morning, football in the afternoon.

All through the game I kept thinking of the unknown lady in the hospital, who can't live very long but at least won't hurt for a while. I wonder what she will do with the time she has left?

Medford's Population Unofficially Is 20,000

MEDFORD, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Medford's population is 20,100, a 90 percent gain since 1940, unofficial figures based on a new city directory prepared by the local branch of the Mormon church showed.

In 1940 the population was 11,281 and in 1930 it was 11,007.

The increase is ascribed largely to the general population shift to the west. Increased employment in lumbering, and pear growing has been noted. Too, there has been noted. Too, there has number of persons coming here to live after retiring from active business.

DIG UP PRISONER

CHICAGO—(AP)—Detective work, like mining, requires a bit of digging. Take the case of the shadowy figure reported in Fred Banasch's drug store on a dark fall night. Police searched the building and found nobody. Then officers Arthur Sweeney and Stephen Palmer took a look at the coal bin. They saw a shoe. began to dig and soon had uncovered one prowler.

UNFAIRNESS CHARGES

PORTLAND, Nov. 2.—(AP)—An AFL union spokesman said Monday that a charge of unfair labor practice would be filed against Lipman, Wolfe & Co., a department store here.

The union, the AFL building service employees, lost an NLRB election at the store last week, 20 to 3. Glen R. Blake, union secretary, asserted the company campaigned against the union on the day of election, and said this would be the basis for the charge.
