

YMCA Accomplishments During Brief Activity Period In Roseburg Are Set Forth

The Roseburg YMCA, as an association with a general secretary, started in June of this year. Many things have been accomplished since then by this organization. The "Y's" first project was to arrange and conduct a city-wide men's tennis tournament. A junior men's tournament was also conducted on request.

Recognizing the number of young children who did not get to hear many stories during the summer, the YMCA undertook to get the stories to the children. An arrangement was made with KRNR for radio time and several community women agreed to tell the stories. Out of this arrangement came the "YMCA Children's Story Hour" heard every Monday and Wednesday for six weeks this summer.

Later in the summer the "Y" promoted the idea of a "Day-Camp" and in this way many boys got a chance to take some trips, to hike, participate in sports and take part in different activities. "Old Wooden-Face," organized along the same lines as the "Day-Camp," took place on Saturdays. This was a game to test the pitching skill of the younger boys. Those who finished at the top were awarded prizes offered by the downtown business men.

Some of the churches organized men's softball teams and played several games during the summer. It has been announced that a camp is being built at Diamond Lake by the YMCAs of Medford, Klamath Falls, Ashland and Roseburg through volunteer labor and donated material. Each city will then have the right to send a certain number of boys to this camp every year. In the fall the Hi-Y and the Tri Hi-Y clubs in the Roseburg high school were re-organized. They have already taken part in several activities, including an officers' conference in Ashland. A sponsoring committee has been organized to assist these high school groups.

The craft program had its initial meeting last Tuesday. The plan is to have a different craft every month in order to teach adults who will, in turn, teach youngsters.

An exercise hour for the men is being conducted every Thursday evening at 5:30 in the junior high gymnasium. A basketball league is in the process of being organized. Teams from the First Christian church, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Umpqua Plywood are assured. Later in the year a basketball league for the church will be organized for the younger boys.

The YMCA has future plans. Two of these are the promotion of groups in the junior high school and groups for younger children in which fathers must join with the boys. The purpose is to strengthen father-son understanding.

EXERCISE HOUR—The YMCA exercise hour conducted each Thursday at 5 p. m. in the junior high gymnasium is one of the activities sponsored by the local organization. The expense is nominal, and participants, composed mostly of persons having little opportunity for other exercise, pay the small fee. Taking part when this picture was taken were George Luoma, Rev. Morris Roach, Paul Elliott, Alva Laws, Rev. Willis Erickson, John Fleck, Ken Bushey, Tom Westbrook, Chuck Allen and YMCA Secretary Marlen Yoder.

ROSEBURG HI-Y INITIATES CANDIDATES—Twenty eight members, pictured above with their adviser, A. H. France, met Wednesday to initiate several new candidates into the YMCA-sponsored Christian youth organization. YMCA CRAFT-A-MONTH CLASS—The above picture shows Rev. Walter A. MacArthur instructing the adult group of the weekly "Craft-a-Month" class, held each Tuesday evening at the Methodist church. Nineteen ladies were on hand for the first class held Nov. 2. They cast figurines of animals and persons who figured in the nativity scene, then hand painted them. The manger was made from old apple crates. Each person in the class will build his or her own manger scene. Rev. Mr. MacArthur said another craft will replace the present activity next month. Anyone interested is invited to join the classes. Materials are purchased at cost from Rev. Mr. MacArthur. In the above group, besides MacArthur, are Virginia Russell, Jane Luther, Marybelle Walker, Bertha Safley, Ethel Benson, Virginia Ott, Geddy Malone, Olive Elliott, Jeri Durham, Ann J. Linder, Margaret H. Doyle, Dorothy M. Koellner, Wilma Doyle, Stella Finnell, Troas Wimer, Linda Vasey, Lucille Reed, Doris Finnell and Gertrude Richman.

Roseburg Paul Bunyans Alter Constitution

Roseburg Paul Bunyans met Tuesday night at Melody Inn at Winston. Changes in the constitution were made to expedite more efficient operation. In the future, officers will be elected the first of the year. A historian will be named to keep a record of the organization's activities.

Present were Bob Legat, L. B. Hicks, Wayne Crooch, Sid Fredrickson, Don Gum, Bill Tipton, George McIntosh, Jack Josse and Jack Farris Jr. The next meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 6, at Melody Inn at 7 p.m. All Bunyans are to come in uniform.

HOMES BID CANCELED
PORTLAND—(P)—The Portland district corps of engineers has canceled a call for bids to build 15 permanent residences at Detroit dam.

Plans for the housing now are being revised by the office of the chief of engineers, Washington, D. C., and will be re-issued in about six to eight months. Besides the residences, the original invitation for bids included utilities, garages, streets and driveways.

PICTURED HERE is a huge crane in use by the Roseburg Lumber company to cold deck logs at its Dillard mill. These logs have been hauled to the pond by truck, dumped and floated to the crane set by men with pike poles, calked boots and fine sense of balance. The logs are ricked in decks 20 to 30 feet high, where they will remain until needed for sawing. The logs used at this mill are fir and are representative in size of those used by the industry in this locality. —(Story and picture by Paul Jenkins).

Travel Difficulties, Poorer Diamond Lake Fishing Cut Number Of Forest Visitors

Visitors to the Umpqua National forest during the 1949 season numbered more than 60,000, reports M. M. Nelson, forest supervisor. Although the total represents a drop of about 18 percent from the 1948 season, the decrease is easily attributable to travel difficulties over the North Umpqua road where construction work limited traffic to a few hours each day. The decline of fishing at Diamond Lake also had its effect, Nelson reports. Diamond Lake, Nelson pointed out, is the chief tourist attraction of the Umpqua forest and fishing conditions materially influence tourist use of the recreational resources of the area. While lake fishing declined, excellent sports angling was available in the North Umpqua river and served to partially offset the drop in visitors to the lake. District rangers estimate that 46,000 people used the public camps maintained by the forest service, Nelson states. Approximately 11,000 persons used resorts and summer homes, a slightly higher figure than last year. Approximately 8,000 persons drove through the forest to enjoy its scenery and environment. Fishing Chief Magnet "Observations indicate that he vast majority of visitors to the forest are attracted by fishing," Nelson said. "The proof is found in the fact that more than 80 percent of the visitors were drawn to Diamond Lake and the North Umpqua river. It is apparent that the decrease in tourists the past two years can be directly attributed to decline in sports fishing." The Wolf Creek forest camp on Little River was operated on a charge basis during the past year as an experiment designed to learn whether forest visitors want some camps where, for a small fee, they will have benefits of camp service and supervision. Little criticism was received from the public and there appeared to be no material decrease in usage, Nelson reports. The forest service, he said, has been experimenting generally with fee camps, but plans at all times to retain ample free camp installations to serve those who do not desire the "extras" provided at camps where fees are collected.
