

Russia's Regard For Her Promises Needed To Awaken Friendship With U. S., Of Which Vishinsky Speaks

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Russian diplomacy often adopts the sphinx-like characteristic of speaking in riddles, and so it is with Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky's intriguing pronouncement about sleeping Russo-American friendship.

What Mr. Vishinsky actually said to reporters in Washington on the anniversary of the red revolution was that the common feeling of friendship between Russia and the United States had fallen asleep but that some day it would awaken.

That's really a beautiful poetic expression—and it's mighty interesting. The trouble is that, after the cryptic fashion of the sphinx, the foreign minister doesn't give us the all-important information as to what he believes it is that will awaken friendship. That leaves it up to us to supply the answer, and so your columnist will undertake to fill in the missing link:

Must Mind Own Business

The sleeping friendship will be awakened when we reach that happy day in which neither country is interfering in the private affairs of the other. That is to say in blunt language, the awakening is dependent on each side minding its own dog-gone business.

Also fact is this would mean an end to Moscow's world revolution for the spread of communism, and to the cold war which has grown out of the revolution.

The Soviet government was established in Russia in 1917 at the successful conclusion of the bolshevik revolution. But it wasn't until 1933 that Washington established formal relations with this regime.

Why this exceptionally long delay in recognition? Because Russian agents in the United States were spreading the gospel of Bolshevism and doing all they could to undermine the American government. Finally President Franklin D. Roosevelt extended recognition, after protracted conversations with Moscow's emissary, Maxim Litvinoff, who had the reputation of being a true believer in peace.

Agreement Broken
F. D. R. laid down stern conditions. Each government agreed to respect the territorial integrity of the other, not to interfere in the internal affairs of the other and not to permit in its territory any group planning violation of the other.

Britain early recognized the Bolshevist regime and ran headlong into grief. De facto recognition was granted in 1921 and de jure recognition in 1924.

In 1927 Britain severed relations with Russia after raiding the offices of the Soviet trade mission in London. The British government charged that the mission was carrying on spying activities in an effort to obtain information regarding the country's armed forces. London renewed diplomatic relations in 1929, though communist propaganda continued.

Red activities in the United States of course never have ceased.

The sleeping friendship will awaken when old promises are made good.

California Court Exiles Lila Leads in Probation

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10. — (AP) — Lila Leads, who figured in the celebrated Robert Mitchum marijuana case, was ordered Wednesday to spend the next five years outside California. That was a condition of probation granted in superior court after her arrest on a reckless driving charge.

The 21-year-old movie bit actress cried a little as Judge Clement D. Nye told her: "You are a member of a profession which is the cynosure of all eyes. The vast majority of its members have good reputations. You have a great responsibility. Judge Nye made it plain that he is not banishing her from California, but that she voluntarily offered to stay out of the state for the term of her probation. She was earlier granted probation after 60 days in jail.

Her attorney, Grant Cooper, says she will start a $1250-a-week theatrical tour in Cincinnati Nov. 21.

Harper's announcement said: "The withdrawal was facilitated because the Navajo tribal council is desirous of cooperating more effectively with the United States in the search for uranium."
