No Hope For Liberalism Within Democratic Party, Morse Claims

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10,-(P)-Senator Morse (R-Ore) said in a statement released here the people should recognize that the Senate in its last session was not a two-party system in operation "but a coalition of conservative Republicans and Democrats." "It represented a new political alignment in fact if not in name," Morse said. "It was a powerful coalition; too powerful for the liberals be-cause there are not enough lib-erals in either the Democratic or Republican party in the Se-nate to out-vote the coalition of reactionaries."

The Senator, now in Oregon to campaign for reelection, made his statement public through his office here.

He said the first session of the 81st Congress "will undoubtedly go down in Congressional history as the coalition Congress."

as the coalition Congress." At the very beginning, he said, a coalition of southern Demo-crats and Republicans was form-ed in support of the so-called anti-fillbuster resoultion of Sena-tor Wherry (R-Neb), which re quires 64 affirmative votes in or-der to carry a motion to end de-bate in the Senate, Morse said it was not an anit-fillbuster reso-lution at all, and added: "The absurdity of the 64-vote
