Y.M.C.A. DIAMOND LAKE CAMP—A couple of years ago the Medford Y.M.C.A. was granted the right by the Umpqua National forest to use the designated land along the shore of Diamond lake. The privilege was for an indefinite period at a very nominal yearly fee. Since no Y.M.C.A. camp was located in this area, Medford decided to allow the neighboring Y.M.C.A. associations to cooperate in building the camp. The associations include Klamath Falls, Ashland, Roseburg and Medford, with the possibility that Grants Pass and Bend may have associations soon. Work on the site was started last year. Roseburg volunteers helped to a small extent. The plan is to have each association assist in the camp construction in proportion to the respective towns' populations. An attempt will be made to get as much donated labor and material as possible to cut the building cost. If any city fails to fulfill its share in the construction, the children attending from that locality will pay a higher fee than the others, until that association's share of the expense is met.

The plan for the camp is shown above. The work completed this year included digging of the well, and erection of a wing of the dining hall. Work was not started until late summer. When the facilities are completed, it will allow for two camps to be run simultaneously for two different age groups. A regular summer camp will be carried on with swimming, hiking, boating and handicraft listed as a few of the activities. Roseburg will be the closest city, when the North Umpqua road is completed.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Sorry, madam, there are NO bargains in diamonds."

Sometimes quality merchandise goes on sale... along with the left-overs. But there is never a bargain price for diamonds. When you buy a diamond you get exactly what you pay for. Size alone is not the gauge. A fine Orange Blossom or a fine Keepsake diamond can be worth twice the price of a poor stone.

Because of their excellent cut, color, brilliance and flawlessness you will be proud to own an Orange Blossom diamond or any diamond from Knudtson's.

The prices of diamonds are very stable. This is as you would want it, of course. For your diamond will always remain a lasting treasure of value and beauty.

Shop around when you plan to buy a diamond but come to Knudtson's before you decide.
