with Bethlehem Steel company, the first major company to settle its dispute with the union. The agreement is based on a company-paid pension plan to provide a minimum monthly benefit of $100, including social security, and a five-cent social insurance program. The insurance will be paid jointly by company and worker.

The CIO-USW is expected to start negotiations with the Aluminum Company of America Wednesday in an attempt to end the strike of some 2,000 workers in Alcoa plants in nine states.

Union Dispute Rages
There were developments in the dispute between left and right wing union members in the electrical industry. At Lynn, Mass., 16,000 members of local 201 voted to quit the left wing United Electrical Workers (UE) and join the new CIO International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. The local is made up of General Electric company employees in Lynn.

The left wing group of a big Pittsburgh local, the 13,000 members of UE 601 at the Westinghouse Electric Corp., ordered an election of officers. Some 9,000 members of the local quit UE to join the new CIO group.

At Bristol, Conn., Roman Catholic priests at five churches urged parishioners who are members of local 260, UE, to vote to secede from the union. The priests want the 1,200 members of the local to join the new CIO union, which was organized after UE's ouster from the CIO at the union's recent national convention.

Buffalo, N. Y., local 1581, with 4,000 members, voted to secede.

Anti-Reds Of Berlin Spurn Russian Rule

a German government spokesman said Acheson and West German Chancellor Adenauer agreed it is not desirable at this time to withdraw western troops from Germany. Even if the Soviet union withdraws troops from east Germany, the spokesman said, the Russians still can rely on secret police and people's police organizations there.

Criticism Irritated
On his arrival in west Berlin, an island inside Soviet occupied territory, Acheson told a news conference the city was a "living symbol of a continual effort to nurture and develop liberty."

"I believe that the patience of the people of Berlin is not wearing thin," he added.

He also said he had been "constantly irritated" by expressions of opinion in America that U. S. policy had failed in China.

"It was not a failure of American policy," the top U. S. diplomat declared. "It was a failure of Chinese policy in China."

The cabinet member implied that German resistance to communism was a far more creditable performance than the collapse of China in the face of communist armies.

Asiatic Problems Await Acheson On Return To U. S.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP) —With western unity newly reinforced in Europe, Secretary of State Acheson returns to Washington this week. He will take up next several important decisions in the drive to halt communism in Asia.

Work on the drafting of a Japanese peace treaty is expected to get a new impetus from the state department chief soon after his arrival. New steps are due, too, to clarify American policies with respect to the Chinese situation.

Acheson's most immediate step, however, will be to join with President Truman in welcoming the Shah of Iran. They will discuss measures for further strengthening the anti-communist position in the strategic line for which Greece is one anchor and Iran is the other.

Progress At Paris
Acheson is due here Tuesday at the end of a week long trip to Paris. While on the visit he talked with British and French foreign ministers on the organization of western Europe including Germany and then made a flying tour of key points in western Germany itself.

Administration officials here shared the confidence which Acheson has displayed in his European statements, that the Paris meeting made solid progress toward solving the great problems of Europe's future. In Acheson's opinion these problems are mainly to win a high degree of political and economic unity among the free nations of western Europe and to have those nations accept Germany once more as a member of the family.

The program which awaits Acheson here shows by dramatic contrast the extent to which Asiatic problems remain unsolved. For it is on issues of the middle east and far east that events of the next week or ten days seem certain to fix the spotlight now that the Paris conference is out of the way.

Barkley Has Close Call On Trip In Bomber

The Civil Aeronautics board, which makes air safety regulations, and the Civil Aeronautics administration, which interprets and enforces them, already are busy with the problem of air traffic separation, spurred by demands from Congress, aviation leaders and the public.

A week after the Nov. 1 crash which killed 55 persons, an eastern constellation official filed a complaint that an Air Force B25 had nearly collided with it south of the airport. It said this near-hit came while the airliner was climbing to cruising altitude.

At about the same time, an Airforce B-25 complained to the Bolling control tower that an eastern constellation had endangered him by making an improper turn over the airbase after taking off from National.

Frank Getty issued a statement on behalf of Goddard Tire and Rubber company, which operates an advertising blimp here, after disclosure of the Barkley incident last night. Getty said an investigation by CAA had absolved the blimp pilot of blame.

People Losing Rule, Cong. Ellsworth Says

by the federal government is bringing about the philosophy repeated by Britain's Ernest Bevin; that is, "we can collect the money from the people and spend it for them better than they can do it themselves."

Citing examples of things done by the government "not the will of the people," Ellsworth mentioned the proposed Columbia Valley Administration, which he identified as a bill full of "trick terms and containing more weasel words than you can shake a stick at."

People of the Pacific northwest never heard CVA mentioned. Congressman Ellsworth stated, until "some smart young men in Washington" drafted it and sent it up to the hill.

"Washington is sending men to the northwest at government expense to sell the people here on something Washington wants done," Ellsworth declared.

"The federal administration would force that bill down the throats of the people of Oregon — a glaring example of statism," Ellsworth said.

He told his listeners the people don't have a "basic understanding of what CVA is."

Explaining, Ellsworth said most people think it a fight between private and public power. They also think it's the only way to have a power development here, a false notion, Ellsworth said, in view of considerable dam development going on at the present.

Another fallacy, Ellsworth said, is the belief by people that the Vanport flood came because of no flood control, an item proposed under CVA.

He sees the reason for present inadequacies the result of poor administration by existing agencies.

Federal spending — amounting to 16 million dollars a day — was also hit by Ellsworth.

GOP Revival Notes
In a more optimistic vein, the Roseburg congressman noted there was "more interest" in Republicanism. He said larger crowds are turning out and people are asking questions. "There is a revival in the Republican ranks of Oregon that is encouraging," he added.

Nationally, Ellsworth said, Republicans stand for a higher order of statesmanship.

Public housing, which would benefit only 800 thousand out of 150 million people, was voted down by Republicans. On the other hand, the Tate-Hartley law was passed "to give labor unions back to its members and out of the hands of labor bosses."

The Republicans voted the way they did on these issues, because they thought it "right," Ellsworth explained.

The Roseburg legislator was introduced by Harry Fargeter, county chairman of the Republican party. Other speakers included Sig Unander, state Republican chairman; Mrs. Martha Cornutt, national committeewoman; Mrs. H. D. Peterson, state vice chairman, and Mrs. Peggy Young, state central committee vice chairman.

Unander, here from Portland, cited figures showing the Republican majority has increased by over 50 percent in the last 12 months and indicated party organization is "100 percent complete" in all Oregon counties.

Prior to the Sunday get-together, lady Republicans feted Mrs. Harris Ellsworth, Mrs. Guy Gordon, Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Cornutt at a Saturday afternoon tea. Mrs. Young was in charge of the arrangements.

Lions' Code Extolled By President Fisher

participation in Lions activity is an ideal method for reaching old age.

But in working together, Fisher said, Lions must work as fishermen, where the "sham that comes with business and politics is not apparent."

"Men come close to God's design, while fishing," Fisher said in quoting a poem. "Let's be fishermen all the time," he said.

District Governor Forrest Losee introduced several guests, including Mrs. Fisher, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Peddycourt, of Seattle. Peddycourt, international Lions' director, introduced the principal speaker.

Gifts, presented by Mrs. Buckley Bell, Dixonville lady Lions' president, presented Mrs. Fisher with myrtlewood bookends, while Roseburg Lions president Dr. J. C. Campbell presented Fisher with a myrtlewood ashtray and cigaret box.

Mrs. Leon Mulkey, violinist, provided entertainment, accompanied by C. Cloyde Riffe at the piano.

Chest Donations Hit Slow Pace, Leaders Say

was obtained at the kick-off breakfast at an average of $20 per person attending, said Quam and Yoder.

"Unless everybody in Roseburg gives," they warned, "the chest cannot reach its goal. We have one week left in the campaign and we feel confident that all the people are solidly behind the agencies represented in the chest."

"A majority of the service clubs have been contacting business houses," they said. "Every business firm must be contacted, because we are trying to reach all of the people at their places of employment this year."

"Considering that the national chest runs about $1,000 a year for every man, woman, and child in the United States, the average person should be giving five cents a day to the Community Chest," Quam and Yoder pointed out. "That's a very small percentage to give."

"We are going to go over the top. We can't allow ourselves to slacken this last week," they added. "The people of Roseburg are noted for their generosity."

Captain Samuel Nicholas, first Continental Marine officer, in 1775 instructed recruiting officers to accept no candidates for the Marine Corps except those "of dependable and religious nature combined with proper robustness of body."
