Women Baffle Holdup Efforts

PORTLAND—(AP)—A pair of young women would-be holdup men didn't get much cooperation here from the women they picked as their victims.

Edna M. Claymore told police a young man accosted her on a city street, flashed a gun and ordered her to halt. Instead, she screamed and ran. She said she noted that the youth departed in an automobile driven by another young man.

A short time later, two youths of similar description entered a neighborhood grocery and announced a stickup. Mrs. John M. Histman, quick-thinking proprietor, told the pair she wanted to show them something, led the way to an outside door. She opened it, shoved them out and locked it. The pair ran down the street.

Two other women were victims of purse snatchers. Mrs. G. C. Cooke, a deaf woman, reported a young man and a girl grabbed her knitting bag which contained $3. Elma Ball told police a man grabbed her purse containing $30 and knocked her to the street.

Man-Caused Fires Build Bad Season in Umpqua Forest

Man-caused fires were responsible for making 1949 one of the most serious fire seasons in the past decade on the Umpqua National forest, reported Ray B. Hampton, fire control officer.

There were 41 fires during the 1949 season, starting in April and ending in November, with 22 of these lightning-set and 19 man-caused, or "preventable."

This year is comparable to 1939, said Hampton, when there were 103 fires, 92 of which were lightning-set. Acreage burned during that year was 1,350 and this year it was 1,421.

Largest fire this year was May 12 in the old Beaver Creek burn, scene of a large fire in 1929, on the Cow Creek district. Next in size was the Little Taft creek fire of 508 acres on the Little river watershed.

Of the man-caused blazes, nine were "smoker" fires; four, debris burning; two, lumbering, and four "miscellaneous."

The burning season was "long." Starting with a 120-acre brush fire in April, there were also three fires in May, two in June, six in July, two in August, 25 in September (largely caused by lightning), one in October, and one in November.

November's fire, covering three acres, was believed caused by a cigarette thrown away by a hunter, said Hampton.

Classified by size, 29 of the blazes were one-quarter acre or less in size; six were between one-half and 10 acres; three, between 10 and 100 acres; one between 100 and 300 acres, and two were more than 300 acres in extent.

Brannan Farm Program Rapped At Co-Op Session

PORTLAND—(AP)—The head of the National Council of Farmers' co-operatives took a mild slap at the so-called Brannan farm program here.

A. J. McFadden of Santa Ana, Calif., co-op president, told delegates to the annual meeting of the Agricultural Co-operative council of Oregon that the national council looks with disfavor on direct subsidies to farmers.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan's plan calls for such payments.

McFadden said the council believes in a program of abundant production, marketing agreements, diversion of surpluses away from direct competition and equal consideration to all farm commodities. The present program lists as "basic" such commodities as cotton, wheat and tobacco.

Paul Carpenter, secretary of the Oregon group, said there are now 61 members, representing 8 1/2 per cent of the state's co-operatives. Their annual business is $100,000,000. Now 28 years old, it was the first such council in the country, he said, and there now are 30 modeled on it. No Tax Advantages

James Hill, manager of Pendleton grain growers and president of the state council, said talk about co-operatives having a tax advantage is misinformation. "I deny we have any tax advantages," he said. "Any advantages we have are offset by disadvantages."

He predicted that future business would resolve itself into a struggle between independents, including co-operatives, and nation-wide organizations.

The farm situation in Europe was outlined by H. B. Carroll, Seattle, executive secretary of the Washington state council of co-operatives. He said that on a recent trip he found eggs selling in Cologne, Germany, at 14 cents each and potatoes at 2 1/2 cents a pound. Their real cost, he said, was apparent in comparison with wages: 25 cents an hour for unskilled and 40 cents for skilled workers.

Co-operatives in Europe are popular, he said, citing one with 4500 member farmers whose average farms ranged from one to five acres. That group had a $5,000,000 volume, he said.

Lubrication plays an important part in all three, regardless where or what it is. But in a gas or diesel engine, acid and moisture prevent the finest oil from doing a perfect job of lubrication, even when changed frequently.

There is, however, a tried and proven product that will immune the moving parts of your engine from the effects of acid and sea water, and at the same time leave a film of friction proofing that will give you increased horsepower.

After 10 to 15 hours use in an engine it will prevent rust and corrosion when that engine is not in use.

That protection for a tractor or piece of logging equipment should not be overlooked or forgotten.

Only a small amount of Wynn's Friction Proofing Oil added to your regular oil or grease does an unbelievable job.

Accept no substitute and expect Wynn's Friction Proofing results.

I base that statement on 34 years observation in engine rebuilding and two years use of Wynn's Friction Proofing Oil along with others.
