

Heavy Buying Of Liquor Cited In Indian Sale Case

KLAMATH FALLS—(P)—Evidence that Russell Frost, 24, accused of being an Indian reservation bootlegger, bought 133 bottles of whiskey from the Klamath Falls liquor store during April and May of this year was presented in circuit court here, but Frost denied selling any liquor to Indians. He said the liquor was consumed "at parties" at his home in Beatty on the Klamath reservation. Frost is on trial on a charge of selling a bottle of whiskey to 19-year-old Sim Riddle Jr. last May 30. His liquor purchases, according to duplicate sales slips from the Klamath Falls state store, indicated an expenditure of approximately $426 in the two months. All purchases were of a brand selling for $3.00 in fifts. Young Riddle trial, incidental—Young Riddle testified Frost charged $10 for a fifth. The trial, incidentally, is the first directly involving bootlegging in circuit court here since prohibition days, and is presided over by Circuit Judge Edward H. Howell, 34, of John Day, Oregon's youngest circuit judge. It is Judge Howell's first criminal trial since he was appointed to the bench a month ago.

Ex-Patrolman Nabbed In Portland Swoop

PORTLAND—(P)—The police vice squad arrested three persons in a liquor raid—one of them an ex-patrolman who was fired from the force as a result of a raid at the same place a month ago. The ex-patrolman was Frank A. Fielding, 29, Police Chief Charles Pray fired him after the first raid when vice squad members reported that Fielding interfered and kept them from entering the place—Big Mike's at 132 S. W. 3rd Ave. The vice squad this time entered with a search warrant, confiscated several bottles, bar equipment, a blackjack and a knife. The last two were found under the bar. Arrested were Jimmy Garrison, 33; Vivian Corbin, 35; and Fielding. Miss Corbin was charged with interference. So was Fielding, and he also was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. Garrison was charged with illegal sale of liquor.

Fined For Speeding To Report Theft Of Purse

SALEM—(P)—State hospital worker Mary Rulla might agree that haste makes waste—or worse. She discovered last night that her purse with $100, car title, keys and other valuables, was stolen. She started for the sheriff's office to report the theft. But enroute a city patrolman decided she was in too much of a hurry and cited for reckless driving. The cost at municipal court was $25.

Valsetz Needs 4 Feet Of Rain To Reach Yearly Average

VALSETZ—(P)—This coast range logging town is going to have to get four feet of rain this month and next if it is to reach its annual average 10-odd feet of precipitation. Could happen, of course. Water comes down here like the Columbia river spilling over Grand Coulee dam when it really sets out to do a bit of raining. A report recently that Newport's 1.95 inches of rainfall was the state's heaviest for the day left local residents gasping like a chinook in the creek. For the records, the day's rain fell at Valsetz that day was over a quarter of a foot. (Other towns would measure it in inches—3.35.) But although last week was moist (over two-thirds of a foot from Tuesday to Sunday) the 10-month total to Nov. 1 was only six and a half feet. It's been a dry year.
