U. N. Votes To Make Liberia An Independent Nation

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Nations assembly has voted decisively to make an independent nation of Liberia, Italy's biggest prewar African colony, by 1952. This was the major part of a three-point program for disposal of Mussolini's old overseas empire.

The Libian territory, on the south shore of the Mediterranean was wrested from Italian hands by Britain's Field Marshal Montgomery in his historic drive from Alamein to Italy against German Field Marshal Rommel in the Second World War. The vote on Libian independence was 49 to 0, with 9 abstaining. The decision of the assembly is final, since the United States, Russia, Britain and France agreed in the Italian peace treaty to accept the assembly's recommendations on the disposition of the Italian colonies. Under the U.N. program, Italian Somaliland also is slated for independence, but the assembly decided Somaliland must wait ten years to prepare the people for self-government.
