BLONDIE By Chic Young

Blondie: I forgot to take a five dollar bill out of the pants I left for the cleaners this morning. The cleaners haven't been here yet. Yes, there it is, just as he said. It's okay, Dagwood. I found the five-dollar bill in the pocket. Aren't you glad your little wife got the money instead of the cleaning company?

Pilot-Less Plane Goes 100 Miles, Then Crashes

MT. OLIVE, Ill., Nov. 29. (AP)—A plane took off without its pilot Monday and flew 100 miles before it crashed. No one was hurt in the freak take-off and crash. The light plane was owned by the Curry Flying service of Galesburg. Arthur Mayer, in charge of flights for the service, said Jack Halls of Galesburg jumped the plane at the Mt. Olive airport and went around the wing to look at the propeller. As he touched it, the motor started with a roar and the plane moved forward. Halls scrambled aside. The plane took off, climbed rapidly in a bank to the left and sailed out of sight. It crashed in a field on the Frank McGrew farm about a mile from Flora, Ill. The farm is about 100 miles from the Craft's starting point.

Operation Saves Eye Remaining In Family Of 3

PORTLAND, Nov. 29. (AP)—The Lee Hodgdon family has learned with joy that the one eye remaining in their family of three is apparently going to be saved. Physicians reported Saturday that the ailment which was threatening to blind 12-year-old Mary Hope Hodgdon seems to have been halted. "It's certainly wonderful," said her blind parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hodgdon. "We can hardly wait to get her home." Physicians at the Elks eye clinic of the University of Oregon Medical school made the crucial test. In an instrument inspection, they found that the operation made 10 days previously is welding down the retina of the eye, saving Mary Hope's threatened vision. The retina, which records images, had been breaking away. That cost Mary Hope the sight of one eye some time ago. It was starting to destroy the sight of the other, when the operation was performed. The 12-year-old girl, who all her life has been the eyes for her blind parents, will remain in the hospital about a week longer. The healing isn't quite complete. "We certainly will celebrate when we get her home," said the father. "But she won't celebrate by reading all those letters."

throughout the country, are stacked up in the Hodgdon home. "We're saving them till Mary Hope is back," the father said. "But friends are going to read them to her. We're not going to run any risk of straining her eye."
