

Superlative Praise Given Turkeys Here

Highest Quality Ever Displayed In One Show, Verdict Of Both Judges

"The highest quality birds ever displayed in one show." That was the verdict of the two judges of the Northwestern Turkey show, now in its second day.

H. P. Griffin, Sonoma, Calif., for 18 years a judge of Northwest turkey shows, joined M. H. Shook of Medford in praising the quality of turkeys entered in this year's Roseburg show. Griffin, judge of the live division, and Shook, dressed division judge, agreed that the entries were the best they "ever saw."

Show Manager George L. Roulledge said yesterday the 1949 show is the largest ever held locally, both in number of birds entered and in interest shown by commercial and merchant exhibitors.

Entries total 400 birds, including 135 turkeys entered in the dressed division. Lining the wall of the arena at the Rolletta Roller rink are 32 display stalls, exhibiting poultry, farming and household merchandise designed to appeal to exhibitors and spectators.

Judging will continue today, in both dressed and live divisions.

SHOW JUDGING CONTINUES—Judging in this year's Northwestern Turkey show continues today, following the opening of the three-day show Wednesday morning. Show headquarters at the Rolletta Roller rink was crowded yesterday with spectators, and exhibitors as H. P. Griffin (above right) of Sonoma, Calif., judged bronze young toms, aided by members of Roseburg Future Farmers of America. As pictured, Griffin puts to use experience he has gained in 18 years of Northwest turkey show judging. In picture at lower right, FFA Member Ronald Curry stands by the bird he was holding for the judge as the young tom turkey calmly waits for the ordeal to finish. One point a newcomer learns about turkey shows is that they are usually cooperative affairs, with everybody pitching in to help. The Scappoose exhibitor pictured extreme right, Loren Johnson, illustrates this fact as he goes from coop to coop filling empty grain cans. The Northwestern Turkey Show continues today, with judging of championships, breeder display and special classes scheduled for Friday.—(Staff photos).

Friday, final day of the show, will see judging for championships, breeder displays and special classes. Birds will be returned to their owners Saturday.

Entertainment Billed
A continuous round of entertainment has been scheduled for all participants. A special get-together in the show building featured Wednesday's action. An educational talk by Noel Bennion of Oregon State college is offered at 7 p. m. Thursday at Hotel Umpqua. Kennedy's Dutch Mill offered entertainment both Wednesday and Thursday night.

Final event of the show is the annual turkey show banquet and entertainment Friday at 7 p. m. at Kennedy's Dutch Mill, followed by the Turkey dance.

Parents, Teachers Swing Hammers For Lunchroom

WASILLA, Alaska—(AP)—Teachers and parents alike swung hammers and chipped in from their paychecks to construct a lunchroom for the Wasilla school out of an abandoned storeroom.

Volunteer workers estimated the costs and sold some $500 in bonds to pay for the venture. The bonds will be paid off from lunchroom proceeds. Frank P. Jones, school superintendent, estimated the bonds should be paid off by October of 1952.

Wasilla, located on the Alaska railroad, is a supply point for the gold fields surrounding Matanuska valley. The school has about 125 students in the grades and high school.

The vacuum bottle was invented by Sir James Dewar about 1892.
