Not even the closest day-to-day conferees of the president can say whether he will seek the nomination again in 1952. They are in agreement only in that they feel he has not made a decision and wants to await developments in the months ahead.

Most of them tell reporters that he has been more than a little concerned by Eisenhower's recent speeches, in which the general has appeared to line up with former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes in criticism of the Truman "Fair Deal."

The president, it was made clear here, is drafting a "State of the Union" message which will relievate his demands for a "Fair Deal" program. It will emphasize the very proposals at which Elsenhower and Byrnes are directing their ammunition.

The president, it was disclosed, will renew his insistence upon passage of:

"Illusion Of Security"
In a recent speech in New York, Elsenhower said that a great many Americans have lost their traditional respect for the virtues of thrift and independence and are seeking the "Illusion called security."
He added: fork, Eisenhower said that a later who have been appearance traditional respect for the rirtues of thrift and independence and are seeking the "illusion called security."

The president, who campaigned around the country under a banner of what he called "security" and a "fair" distribution of United States bountles for all, is known to have told intimates he thinks of Eisenhower's speech as a preliminary to a formal bid for nomination.

After opening with a series of jokes which kept everyone laughing, he impressed the players, ilons club members and guests with a serious picture of the necessary qualities to make wingers, both on the playing field and in outside life.

He stated he did not believe most players give everything they have to every play, and the attitude of the players have a great deal to do with whether or not a team can play against great odds and come out on top.

He concluded by quoting what condities to determine the practicing: "The ship's out there, and it's going to sail. And it's going to sail every day. Are you going to be on it?"

"Last-Half" Team Coach Sherwood spoke briefly on the football season just past. It was not difficult to see, he said, why the team did not win more games, because the team average was only about 155 pounds, which is light for a high school team. Also 16 players were lost last spring to graduation.

He humorously remarked that perhaps he should have had the team play half a game before it went on the field, because in the last two contests the team didn't star playing until half-ime, then almost won. He referred especially to the Grants Pass game, which turned from an apparent rout to a one-touchdown difference, after Roseburg had held the Cavemen scoreless in the second half to score twice itsself.

He said 14 vlayers will be lost to graduation this year, so prospects next season are not too good. The team will be light again next year. He said he hoped something could be done to open pracitice earlier in the day as induce-

Broken Physically
Thomas' lawyer, William H.
Collins, had pleaded with the judge not to punish the congress man by jail and fine.
Collins described Thomas as "broken in body and spirit."
Standing before Judge Holtzoff, Thomas did, indeed, seem to bear scant resemblance physically to the rosy-cheeked little man who once was the gavel-cracking chairman of the spy-hunting House un-American Activities committee.

Mrs. Thomas was almost cheerful as she talked to reporters outside the court after the case was over and announced her intention of seeking the congressional seat her husband is leaving for a jail cell.

The New Jersey attorney eral has ruled that there will have to be a special election to fill Thomas' unexpired term. It runs to the end of 1950.

Mrs. Thomas told reporters she is 48. She is the mother of two children, J. Parnell Jr., and Stiles Thomas.
