Congress Inquiry Deals With Low Income Families

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) says Congress may be about to learn that some thrifty farm families "are doing pretty well with cash incomes as low as $2,000 or even $1,000 a year."

Flanders is a member of the Senate-House economic subcommittee opening 10 days of hearings on "low-income families."

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.), subcommittee chairman, said in advance the group hopes to learn what, if any, governmental action can be done to improve the lot of some 10,000,000 families with cash incomes of $2,000 or less a year.

Flanders, in advance of the hearings, told a reporter that congress "may learn we are making a mistake to lump persons in the low income group."

"We have heard a great deal about the one-third who are ill-housed, ill-fed and ill-clothed," he said. "Often the administration asks us to deal with them as a group."

Flanders said it is probable that some farm families with a small cash income actually were pretty well off.

"They raise most of their food and sustenance and are wise about spending the cash," he added.

"But Congress should have an accurate factual background on what these low income people are what caused them to get that way, and what can be done about it," he said.

Data already accumulated by the committee staff indicates that "some farm areas produce widespread low income," he said. "Maybe the cure for them would be basic changes in agricultural methods and diversification."

"Lack of educational facilities and proper training for handicapped groups may be another cause," he said.

Staff studies indicate that "non-white males" heading families in rural areas form the largest low-income group. Other factors listed include lack of education, physical handicaps and broken families.

GOP Meetings Called To Map 1950 Strategy

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Republicans roll up to a political cross roads this week in the 1950 congressional campaign.

Party leaders face financial and strategic decisions at meetings in New York and Chicago. Individual members already were busy trying to set the Republican vehicle in the directions they think victory lies next year.

R. Douglas Stuart of Lake View, Ill., newly appointed party treasurer, began mapping a fund drive. His appointment was announced Saturday. He succeeds James S. Kemper of Chicago, who resigned Nov. 3 because the party's reserve fund had dwindled to only $30,000.

Stuart is vice chairman of the board of the Quaker Oats company of Chicago and a national Boy Scout official.

Senator Jenner (R-Ind) called for a different turn on international affairs, blasting against the bipartisan foreign policy which has had the loving care of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.)

Coalition ideas Rapped
Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) took Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) to task for suggesting formation of a new party through a coalition of southern Democrats and northern Republicans.

That just wouldn't work, the Vermont senator said. He added that he does think a lot of Democrats will join the Republicans in opposing too much centralization of government power in Washington.

Some prospective large contributors to the GOP's nearly empty war chest for the 1950 campaign are said to be demanding an all-out stand against the Truman proposals as the price of their financial support.

Some of the Republican leaders don't think that would be wise, Senator Taft, for instance, stands committed to public housing, aid to education and other so-called welfare measures that more or less parallel the Truman proposals in these fields.

Southern Area of California Hit By Freezing Spell

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13—(AP)—Winter came to southern California Monday with broken water pipes, icy streets and similar phenomena usually associated with colder climes.

Temperatures slid below zero in snow-covered mountains with Big Bear recording minus three degrees. Elsewhere they ranged upward to Los Angeles' 37.

In many citrus districts they touched the low 20s, and surveys were started to determine the damage. Extensive fruit loss, however, does not develop for several weeks.

Such citrus centers as Redlands and Rialto recorded 23 degrees, with 22 in other spots. Orchard heating was extensive, and a black pall of smudge smoke covered a 70-mile band from the mountains to the ocean.

General manager Robbins Russell of the Mutual Orange Distributors, a citrus cooperative, said heating generally probably forestalled serious losses to navel oranges, "because of the maturity and size of the fruit—it is bigger this year than for several years past."

Mile-high Lake Arrowhead recorded a minimum of 12 as did the Mojave desert community of Lancaster, where water pipes and car radiators froze.

Water pipes also froze in Van Nuys, in the San Fernando valley, where 24 degrees was recorded.

It was below freezing in most sections of northern California Monday morning. Some outdoor garden hydrants froze on the San Francisco peninsula.

Temperatures in the interior valley ranged from 25 to 30.

Christmas Turkey Shoot Slated By Rod And Gun Club

Trapshooters are urged by Fred Kuck, captain of the Roseburg Rod and Gun club's trapshooting department, to have the old scatterguns well oiled and in good working condition by next Sunday. That is the date for the club's annual Christmas turkey shoot and keen competition is anticipated, Kuck says.

As proof of the type of shooting to be expected, Kuck points to the fact that Ivan Pickens ran a straight string of 50 birds without a miss last Sunday, while Waik Edmonds and Charles Klinger broke 25 straight. Scores of 24 each were made by Roy Hill, Irvin Davis, Jack Culver, Earl Duncan. Other top shooters included George Voytella, Scott Goodman, Bert Lehnerr, Perry Thiele, G. M. Wiles.

Nineteen practice and merchandise squads participated in last Sunday's events.

Not all the turkeys next Sunday will go to expert marksmen, Kuck reports, for events will be arranged for beginners, together with surprise events in which all participants will be on equal footing.

Kuck states that all shooters are invited to participate, no club affiliation being required, and spectators are welcome at all shoots.

Numbers From "Messiah" To Be Sung By Society

Seven of the major choral numbers of Handel's "Messiah" will be performed Tuesday, Dec. 20, by the Roseburg Choral society, in a free public concert to be given at the junior high school auditorium.

Under the direction of Charles A. Ricketts, the 50-voice chorus will include in the program such favorite "Messiah" numbers as "And the Glory of the Lord," the beautiful "For Unto Us a Child is Born," and the resounding "Hallelujah" chorus.

Nine soloists will be featured during the performance, and the Christmas presentation will be accompanied by Mrs. Sherman Plimpton, pianist, and Mrs. Paul Geddes, organist.
