Ninety-two million board feet of timber in the Roseburg district is included in a list of the approximate volume and location of timber in the O & C area of western Oregon to be advertised for sale during 1950 by the Bureau of Land Management under the new annual timber sales program. Daniel L. Goldy, regional administrator, announced.

Mr. Goldy stated that the new program, which was developed in consultation with the O & C Advisory board, will permit prospective purchasers to play their operations with advance knowledge of the sale to make appropriate adjustments in his operations so as to bid for the timber. It is expected that the possible for all operators who so desire, to compete for O & C timber to be included in the plan consultation with the O & C Advisory board, will permit prospective purchasers to play their operations with advance knowledge of the sale to make appropriate adjustments in his operations so as to bid for the timber. timber to be included in the plan were solicited from all interested parties during the summer months of 1949. These suggestions together with all other information were considered by the district foresters in the formulation of the timber sales program for each administrative area. Final programs were developed in consultation with district advisory board on which are included representatives of the lumber industry, agriculture, labor, recreation and wildlife groups, livestock and mining industries, and the general public.

Factors Considered

The timber to be offered for sale is limited by the sustained yield allowable cuts of the administrative areas. The individual tracts have been selected throughout western Oregon so as to take into account the dependence of local communities on the O & C timber.

Other factors which were considered by the Bureau of Land Management in deciding the volume and tracts of timber to offer for sale were the number of personnel available to prepare and administre timber sales, the accessibility of the timber, the ageclass and condition of the timber in each locality, the reservation
