Protestant Churches Plan Union To Help Small Units With Inadequate Finances

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Establishment of a United Protestant church—partly to save small independent congregations with inadequate finances and facilities—is sought at a conference here.

Representatives of more than 19,000,000 churchgoers are attending the three-day conference.

The main business will be to establish a permanent committee "to explore several proposals which will be submitted to interested denominations for a United Church of Christ in America."

This goal was explained by Dr. Mark A. Dawber, co-executive secretary of the Home Missions council, "This agency, which represents 25 religious bodies, arranged the conference.

Dr. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice-president of the Board of Home Missions, Congregational Christian church, said demand for the meeting had been spurred by deficiencies in church facilities for many of the nation's 47,000,000 protestants.

The conference is sponsored by seven denominations representing 15,140,000 members. Seven other denominations, with 4,257,000 members, sent observers. Also attending are consultants from four interdenominational councils.

Presiding over the sessions is Dr. Douglas Horton, secretary of the general council of the Congregational Christian churches.

Here are some of the things Dr. Douglas mentioned in connection with the conference's aim: Many new communities don't have a church or Sunday school. Older communities, with shrinking populations, should have a consolidated church instead of trying futilely to support

St. Onge and Mrs. Paul R. Shanklin, hostesses. Those attending are asked to bring gifts for children to exchange and later to be given to child welfare.

Observers are being sent by these denominations: Protestant Episcopal church, Church of the Brethren, Five Years Meeting of Friends in America (Quakers), Augustana Lutheran, Evangelical United Brethren, Presbyterian church in the U. S. (South), and Churches of God in North America.

Consultants are being sent by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, National Council of Community Churches, International Council of Religious Education, and the Home Missions council.

Several a congregation in Egbertsville, N.Y., uses a chicken coop. One in Glenview, Ill., uses a bowling alley. On Long Island, New York, a Manhattan congregation uses a roadside restaurant and a south Hempstead congregation, a garage.

Dr. Douglass said a stronger attack could be made on such problems as housing, racial strife and juvenile delinquency through a united church.

The seven denominations sponsoring the conference are: Methodist church, Disciples of Christ, church, Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., Congregational Christian churches, Moravian church in America (Northern Province) and African Methodist Episcopal Zion.

These churches already accept each other's ministries and sacraments.

Elks' Home Talent Show Entertains Capacity House

By WARREN MACK A spirited group of home town performers, many of them appearing before the public for the first time, entertained a packed house last night at the first regular performance of the Elks' second annual Christmas charity minstrel review.

Show-goers witnessed a wide display of home talent, ranging from oldtime vaudeville slapstick to beautifully staged dancing and singing numbers. Some of the talent was outstanding in the persons of Millie Dean and her sultry renditions of torch songs, the professional dancing of tap artist Wally Carter, and a clever blackface number by little Suzanne Williams.

Coming in for special mention was the skillful handling of the master of ceremonies role by Del McKay. Such obstacles as picking up over the sound system programs aired by the local radio station and accidental damage to sound equipment were taken in stride by the popular McKay.

The audience laughed appreciatively at the gentle fun (and some not so gentle) poked at the local telephone office, city police and various local persons. The audience reacted favorably throughout most of the show, with clever pre-performance "bits" setting the mood before show time.

Performance Smooth William Croarkin, director imported from Hollywood, earned plaudits with his precise show organization. In spite of its 36 acts and two and a half hours, the show was run like clockwork, with few lapses to distract the audience.

As is the case in many home talent shows produced on such a large scale, the performance of ten was more a display of enthusiasm than of talent. The 150 persons in the cast quite evidently enjoyed themselves throughout the performance. And as a rule, the audience shared in this exuberance.

Although the show might have been improved with more rehearsal time, cast members and sponsoring Elks are to be congratulated for the generally good quality entertainment offered local citizens. The fact that most of the performers were amateurs, often performing in an amateurish manner, contributed to the humor noted in many of the acts. The special short skits, tying together the more elaborate production numbers, were excellent.
