Sidelights...
Here and There

One of Douglas county's best known families, the V. T. Jacksons, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Elton and Ruth Jackson. . . . over 300 called during the afternoon to greet the couple. . . . heather holly and red carnations combined on the mantel to carry out the ruby theme and wedding ring. . . . quite efficient were two of the younger generation, Carolyn Sue Jackson, granddaughter of the Jacksons and Donna Henry, niece of the Elton Jacksons in identical taffeta floor-length gowns of pink and blue. . . . the former provided music and Donna assisted with guest book. . . . the pleasant ring of the telephone brought the family together via long distance, when Dorothy Jackson, Elton's sister, called from Omaha, Neb., where her husband, James, is a major with the air force. . . . they returned last summer from Adak in the Aleutian Islands. . . . Mrs. V. T. complimented her attractive turquoise blue afternoon gown, which was beaded on the bodice, with matching earrings. . . . and how V. T.'s eyes sparkled when he greeted everyone during the reception hours. . . . among the guests were the H. H. Turners' who just a month ago observed their 25th anniversary. . . . a special visitor was Lela Ramsey, president of the Rebekah Assembly for Oregon who paid her compliments to V. T., a past president of the state Rebekah assembly. . . . hostess Ruth in an attractive black tulle gown with sequins. . . . background music was provided by Beth Warg, Helen Saar and Lois Stewart. . . . and that's all for today.
