Here's How To Avoid Money Worry: Let Wife Handle Family Finances

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK—(AP)—Bills! Bills! Bills! The January mail is full of them. So is our house—and so is yours, I'll bet. After the first of the year it's payoff time for Santa Claus, and the bills flood in like the Galveston tidal wave. It is the season when the average man realizes the old truth that in this life money alone is not enough. At least the money he has handy isn't. And he lives in dread of the installment collector.

A friend of mine is a case in point. Passing his home the other night, I decided to drop in and see his new television set. I knocked half a dozen times but there was no answer. Puzzled, I went to a drugstore and phoned him. "Oh, was that you knocking?" he said in great relief. "Come on back, rap twice—so we'll know it's you—and we'll let you in." When I entered I found the whole family grouped around the video screen eating sandwiches. I asked, "why all the mystery," and my friend said: "I couldn't make the January payment on the television set, and we're not answering the door for fear it's the installment man coming to take the set back. If I could hold out to February, I'll be all right."

Own Dilemma Recalled How well do I remember when I used to be in this pitiful plight—a January fugitive from financial woes. This was in the days when I used to handle the money in the family. Giving me a checkbook and telling me to spend carefully was like giving Hitler an army and telling him not to waste it. Soon the bill collectors beat on my door so often they asked me to put a pad on it to save their knuckles. January, then as now, was the worst month. Once I hit on a solution that seemed fine. As usual the amount on the bills totaled more than the amount in the bank. "Why don't I write out a check for each bill," I thought, "and then put the checks in the wrong envelopes. Each guy will think I meant to pay him. It will be April by the time the whole business is straightened out, and by then I'll be solvent."

So I addressed all the envelopes and wrote all the checks, and laid out the checks and envelopes in two rows. Then I went into the reading room to finish a serial. When I emerged, the desk was bare. Frances came in a few moments later. "I had to mail a letter, so I mailed your checks, too, dear," she said. "Of course, you put the RIGHT checks in the RIGHT envelopes?" I moaned. "Oh, yes, I didn't make any mistake, dear." Let Your Wife Handle Cash Not much! It was June by the time that mess was straightened out. By then we had given our patronage to another bank—it seemed a good idea. And Frances, once and for all, had agreed to take over our finances. That, men, is the only way to be sure your bills are paid and to enjoy a life free of financial cares. Let your wife handle the money. Wives are like canaries, which can be just as happy with a thimble full of birdseed as a barrel full. Women don't complain half as much about how little you earn—if they control the purse. It has worked out wonderfully in my household. Let Frances crease her brow over how to meet

U. S. Sould Aid China Without Risk, Mrs. Chiang Says

Heart Trouble Aid Revealed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—As a precaution against heart trouble, avoid wearing tight clothing when on long and frequent journeys—and get up and move around every hour or so. This was the advice of some of the nation's leading heart specialists at conclusion of a national conference on "cardiovascular diseases" yesterday.

They recommended such procedures for all people sitting throughout long airplane, train or automobile trips. They said these were possible means of avoiding circulation disorders which might lead to the formation of blood clots. Such clots, it was explained by interpreters of the report, might eventually be carried to the heart, the lungs or the brain—possibly causing death.
