

Arrangements Completed For Polio Fund Dance

Plans have been completed and tickets are on sale today in two uptown places of business for the Active club-sponsored infantile paralysis campaign dance Friday, starting at 9 p.m. in the armory, announced general chairman Dick Gilman.

Gilman announced that the Junior chamber of commerce has volunteered to decorate the hall Friday, the same as last year. The Active club members will take care of the cleanup Saturday.

Both popular and western music will be provided for the dance. Lou Franco and his Happy Valley Cowboys will play most of the evening, and two other music groups have volunteered their services for a portion of the evening.

Woody Ross's Shammar trio will play from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, and the Elks band will play from 11 to 11:30 p.m.

Polio Chairman Jim Oakley reported at the Active club meeting Thursday at the Shammar that all collection containers are out in the city. He said, however, that any place which was inadvertently missed may obtain a container by contacting him, or any other club member.

Tickets for the polio dance are on sale at Trowbridge Electric and Wayne's shoe store.

Glenn Jones, president, was delegated as the club representative to the Camp Fire Girls council, which will hold its annual meeting next Monday.

Marlen Yoder, YMCA manager, was a guest. He spoke briefly, asking that the club consider taking part in one of the volleyball exercise hours at the armory either Tuesday or Thursday nights from 5 to 6 p.m. He suggested that service clubs work up a competitive sport to create added interest.

Fletcher Webster was a guest of Arlo Jacklin.

Senate Debates Plan To Drop Electoral College

number of popular votes received. Thus in a state with 12 electors, a candidate receiving 75 per cent of the popular vote would be entitled to nine electoral votes. Under the present system he would get all 12.

The amendment also would eliminate any possibility of House of Representatives electing a President. This has happened in the past when no candidate received a majority of the electoral votes, currently 266.

Objections to the plan fall into three general arguments: (A) It would tend to increase the number of so-called "splinter" parties; (B) It would introduce the principle of proportional representation at the presidential level, and (C) It would work to the disadvantage of one or the other of the two major political parties.

Lodge said some Southern Democrats fear it would break up the so-called "solid south" which traditionally goes down the line for Democratic candidates. But others, he continued, feel that a realistic two-party system in the south would give Southern Democrats a stronger voice in party councils.

Similarly, he reported, some senators fear that the abolition of the electoral college would have an adverse effect on Republicans in northern states regarded as traditional GOP strongholds.

Lodge said he is in no hurry for a vote because when it comes "I want it to be an informed vote."

India Joins Ranks Of Democratic Republics

Democratic republic of India possible. Major Alma told India's foreign policy, he said, "is to live in terms of friendship with all other countries."

Within India, the president continued, "our program is to wipe out disease, poverty and ignorance. We are anxious to rehabilitate the displaced persons who have suffered and are still suffering great hardship and privation."

President Truman sent a message to Prasad that India's new status "constitutes an auspicious beginning for the second half of the twentieth century."

"May the future of the new republic functioning under a Democratic constitution be characterized by peace, prosperity and good fortune," the U. S. President said.

SENTENCED—Marshall Dana (above) and Friedrich Von Mannstein (below), last German to face an Allied War Crimes Court, was found guilty of 9 of 17 war crimes charges at Hamburg, Germany. The 62-year-old commander of Nazi forces on the Southern Russian front was sentenced to 18 years imprisonment by a British Military Tribunal.

Coal Industry Bids Anew To John L. Lewis

only possible move which could head off (1) the spread of strikes in key soft coal mines and (2) intervention by President Truman.

More and more soft coal miners dropped their tools this week, and Director James Boyd of the bureau of mines told the Senate labor committee yesterday that unless coal production increases at once, "the national economy, health and welfare of the nation is now or soon will be imperiled."

At least 88,000 miners were reported idle and the number was spreading. Steel companies announced more cut-backs and the banking of furnaces for lack of coal. Railroads were laying off workers for the same reason.

The striking miners may be protesting Lewis' order to work only three days a week, or they may be forcing a showdown with coal operators who have held out against Lewis' contract demands since last spring. The miners have been working on and off without a formal contract since last July 1.

Mr. Truman was reliably reported to be convinced that if the outbreak of strikes in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio were ended, the coal shortages feared by operators, retailers and congressmen would lessen or disappear.

White House policy advisers on whom Mr. Truman relies were reported to be cautioning against any action by the President before next week.

They said that despite the Boyd testimony yesterday the executive would hold off a while longer. But they hinted that if Lewis did not move in the next 48 hours to restore at least three-day production each week, Mr. Truman would take the first steps toward invoking the Taft-Hartley act strike-ending machinery.

That first step would be the appointment of a board of inquiry which would need at least a week or ten days to make its study and report to the President. Such a board could only record the facts, and could not suggest a solution. The strike could end or expand in the meantime.

Mr. Truman is pledged to repeal the Labor act and Lewis is one of its leading critics. That puts them on the same side of the controversy over invoking the Taft-Hartley act.

'Little People' Astir, Marshall Dana Says

(Continued from page One) today: I call it a movement of little people," Dana said. He declared this movement is leading toward freedom and liberty, words which many of the world's people believe are synonymous with "a little more rice, a little more land."

Speaking of his meeting with the Orient's leaders, Dana referred to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur as "two of the world's most capable persons, who are also two of the greatest actors." During his interview with Gen. MacArthur, Dana was told not to expect a shooting war with Russia for at least five years, a statement Dana received two years ago.

U. S. Foreign Policies Hit. The Oregon editor covered the official U. S. attitude toward supporting those Asiatic countries who have since fallen to the communists.

"How stupid can U. S. officials become in writing off Formosa, Korea and Nationalist China," he asked. He lamented the policy of not strengthening those of these nations to maintain freedom. Instead, he said, we sit back and take all the insults Russia has to offer.

"Our sons will die because we don't know where American defense begins," Dana declared. He warned that with control of all China, the USSR will be the greatest manpower pool in the world and will be able to resist the combined efforts of any union of nations.

A rapid shift to the European scene brought forth remarks from Dana that the Marshall plan is "money well spent."

"However, it must be replaced soon by a real stimulus to trade and productivity of the individual countries involved," he said. Dana concluded his talk with the thought that "the trails of freedom over which the world's little people are treading do have a meeting place—and that place is right here in Oregon."

"We have an abundance of those things necessary for spiritual, intellectual and material achievement and betterment," he declared. "Let's not let them get away."

Walter E. Kessinger Summoned By Death

Walter Elsworth Kessinger, 68, resident of Roseburg for the last six years, died at his home on Prospect street this morning following a prolonged period of illness.

He was born at Rensselaer, Ind. April 13, 1881. He was married to Mrs. Ollie May Baldwin at Klamath Falls, on April 3, 1943. He came to Roseburg from Chillicothe, in 1944, and had been employed at the Roseburg Lumber Co. until 1947, when he retired because of illness.

Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Ollie M. Kessinger of Roseburg. Funeral services will be held in the chapel of the Long & Orr mortuary Saturday at 11 a. m. with the Rev. DeLores Cronk officiating. Concluding services and interment will follow in Civil Bend cemetery.

Ex-Husband Best Man At Ex-Wife's Wedding

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP)—John Henry Mears, the man who set globe-girdling records in 1913 and 1928, was best man last night at the wedding of his former wife, Mrs. Marian Mears.

Mrs. Mears married Ralph Koehler, 51, salesman for a wine company. Actress Hillary Brooke, friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mears said he and Mrs. Mears were divorced in 1920.

Mears first circled the globe in 1913, starting from New York and traveling 21,666 miles in 35 days. In 1928 he made it in 23 days, using a cabin monoplane to cover and portions of the journey. He received presidential recognition of his feats from Woodrow Wilson and Calvin Coolidge.

Mears is a writer and producer of plays.

Three Major Highways In Oregon Still Closed

SALEM, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Motorists need chains on all mountain roads in Oregon, as well as in several sections of Eastern Oregon, the state highway commission said today.

Roads still closed today were: The Columbia river highway by snowfalls between Hood river and Cascade locks, the Oregon Coast highway by a slide 13 miles south of Port Orford, and the Siuslaw highway by a cave-in near Florence.

The Corvallis-eastside highway was reopened today after being closed by high water.

U. S. Purges Mail Of Obscene Bath Mat Ads

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—The post office department said today the Olympic Novelty Co. of Los Angeles has agreed to stop using the mails to promote a rubber bath mat made up of so-called "falsies."

The department last week charged there was an apparent violation of the obscenity laws in the mail advertising and distribution and ordered the company to answer the charges. The company replied with the affidavit.

The department said the article, made of flesh colored rubber, was advertised as "the bacchelor bath mat."

Acheson's Stand For Hiss Stirs GOP Wrath

(Continued from page One) that he will not turn his back on any of the other Communists in the State department. Democrat Critical

There were some informal expressions of admiration for Acheson on Capitol hill, based on the theme of personal loyalty, but there was no apparent rush to his side.

One Democrat, Rep. O'Toole of Brooklyn, criticized the State department chief. O'Toole told a reporter:

"If Secretary of State Acheson has been quoted correctly, I feel that he has done the greatest disservice to due process of law and the democratic way of life that has ever been done by any high American public servant."

Acheson's remark, at a news conference came within a few hours of the sentencing of Hiss to five years on conviction of lying in swearing that he never passed any secret State department documents to an agent for the Communist underground. Hiss maintained his innocence and pledged he would vindicate himself.

The Secretary of State, with some emotion, told reporters: "I should like to make it clear to you that whatever the outcome of any appeal which Mr. Hiss or his lawyers may take in this case, I do not intend to turn my back on Alger Hiss."

"I think every person who has known Alger Hiss or has served with him at any time has upon his conscience the very serious task of deciding what his attitude is and what his conduct should be."

Acheson said it was clear to him what his own stand should be. Munds remarked that Acheson "speaks from the affinity of a close and long-established friendship, and a business relationship with his brother (Donald Hiss), with whom he (Acheson) was a partner in the law business."

Because of this, Munds added, he does not believe that Acheson "is exactly what he would call an objective witness as to the loyalty of Alger Hiss."

Frankfurter also rapped Munds and criticized Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter for testifying in behalf of Hiss at the first trial, which ended with a hung jury.

He said Frankfurter had "dragged the hallowed robes of the supreme court into a criminal court as a character witness for a man now convicted of perjury."

Munds credited Hiss with the ability to work his way into confidence of men high in government where he could control policy-making.

"A few still say he is just a nice young man with a Harvard accent and a neat crease in front

Pirate Millions Goal Of Digger In Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 26.—(AP)—George B. Mobley, 83, is busy digging a big hole in downtown Miami and says he is looking for $40,000,000 in gold.

So far the hole, now about 20 feet deep, has yielded a glass Mason jar patented Nov. 30, 1858, and a wine bottle dated 1853. A handful of onlookers watched yesterday as Mobley demonstrated his glass, metal and wooden diving rod. It leaned toward the hole, partially filled with water.

Mobley said pirates hid the gold in springs here when they came to get fresh water in the 16th and 17th centuries, but he's leaning heavily on his rod for the exact location.

Two years ago Mobley sought $4,000,000 in gold in Green Cove Springs, Fla., but found only some old timbers and brass globules.

He said the diggings cost his backer, Dr. H. H. Humphreys, Jacksonville physician, $3,800.

of his trousers," the senator said. "No wonder he could fool Dean Acheson," he added later. "He was suave, able, ingenious. But he wasn't smart enough to cover up his tracks."

Munds as a House member served on the un-American activities committee which turned up the startling testimony of Whitaker Chambers, self-admitted former communist spy ring member. Chambers was the key witness against Hiss at both his trials.

Without this committee, Munds said, there would have been "no conviction of Alger Hiss nor an exposure of the communist-espionage ring in the government."

"A whole ocean of red herrings won't obscure that," he added, referring to President Truman's description of the committee investigation as a red herring.

Wallace Green Faces Murder Indictment

Green reported to neighbors the finding of his grandfather's body, and they in turn notified police. The youth was arrested by state police after questioning.

In a signed statement given the district attorney, Green said he had been shaving his grandfather in the afternoon of Thanksgiving day. He said he went into the bathroom, and after coming out he remembered standing by the stove with a piece of wood in his hand.

Green claimed that he then blanked out, but recalled later being outside and finding articles belong to his grandfather in his possession.

Davis said that the elder Green's wallet was found in the youth's possession at the time of his arrest, and that he showed the officers where he had hidden his grandfather's watch beside a fence post near the road.
