One of four beauties will be selected tonight by popular vote as queen of the Sweetheart ball, sponsored by four local Beta Sigma Phi chapters. In a setting of St. Valentine what could be more appropriate than a Sweetheart queen.

And who will crown this beauty? None other than Al McBee who will be master of ceremonies. At the stroke of eleven he will place the crown on her head.

Gerry Ohman and Vi Boucock, co-chairmen, have been hard at work with their energetic committees, completing arrangements for the ball. Vi said she hopes this will be an annual affair. And Valentine's day offers a host of ideas for decorating. There will be cupid, hearts, arrows, and red and white streamers. Against this setting the Beta Sigma Phi members their invited guests and escorts will dance to "good local music." Formal attire is dictated for the ladies.

Mary Ann Barker heads the decorating committee and all sorority members are anticipating an evening to be remembered for a long time.

Candidates for the Sweetheart crown are Lela Rennie, Violet Welker, Maurine Darby and Irene Tozier.

Hearts and flowers to the four queens in their own right!

Sidelights..

Here and There

Grapevine has it that the Stever Sedell bridge luncheon Tuesday at the Roseburg Country club was a swank affair. The clubroom was a thing of beauty thanks to St. Valentine and hearts and flowers were much in evidence. Those red carnations added a touch of oh so necessary color—after a stretch of nature's white for the past few weeks.

The guests urged spring's arrival a bit and arrived in spring fashions. Both hostesses, on the petite side, added a vivacious note to the afternoon. Jo Sedell wearing a smart navy blue and tan and Grace Stever in a trim grey ensemble.

Betty Adams arrived in a new navy blue suit with matching hat with gardenia trim. Kathryn Bailey selected a black frock with gold and silver sequin trim. Kay Martin wore a new spring print and Ethel Twoby was stunning in a black suit with blue accessories.

Many eyes turned to admire Hazel Dawe in her brown outfit topped with smart white hat and Maxine Henninger was chic in her black suit with Persian lamb trim and smoke gray cheapeau.

Unable to attend due to illness was M. S. Scott Layman of Eugene, former Roseburg resident.
