The rooms of the west wing of the Sutherland Christian church have been remodeled recently by some of the men of the church.

Counting station record of winter steelhead migration at the Winchester dam through Feb. 15 shows the following for the respective years: for 1946, 1,316; for 1947, 5,442; for 1948, 1,620; for 1949, 1,264, and for 1950, 1,415.

The figure for 1946 represents the parent run of the fish now in the river, according to Biologist Ross Newcomb. Variations in weather and accompanying water temperature make it impossible to accurately predict what the total run will be. At present there is indication of a slight increase over the parent run, he said.

Anyone owning or living near barriers in the smaller streams should make every attempt to render such barriers passable at all water stages so that the steelhead can reach their preferred spawning grounds, said Newcomb.

Winston

By MRS. GEORGE BACHER

Miss Harry Winston left here Sunday afternoon for Portland where she boarded a plane for Butte, Montana. Word had been received here that her father, Fred Renner, of that city had broken his hip in a fall. Mr. Renner, who celebrated his 90th birthday last July at the home of the Winston family, is a well known Douglas county resident having resided in this community many years. At one time he was employed by the News-Review in Roseburg.

In the absence of Miss Winston who teaches school at Dillard, Mrs. Louis Fullerton also of Winston is substituting in her place.

Miss Joslyn Fecher, state representative for the State Board of Health, conducted audiometer tests at the Green school Monday. All students were tested for hearing and will be rechecked periodically.

Stuart Hayes underwent surgery at Mercy hospital Wednesday. Hayes is carpenter contractor in Gleggery and Mrs. Hayes is a teacher at the Green School.

Work Starts On Canal For Winston Section

Work has begun recently in the territory known as Winston section on a canal as a means of flood control. A group of local residents started the project and were later aided by the county. The canal, beginning at Harry Winston's south orchards, will later extend as far north as Highway 99. To date it has been completed as far as Poplar drive, the top road through this vicinity, and the county has finished the laying of a culvert between the Lawrence Farms and the Carl Bowman farms.

Weather conditions permitting, work will be resumed in the near future on the canal. Ray Bros' ranch will then be ditched with the drainage system joining the outlet south of the Winston bridge on Highway 99, they said.

Those merging to make this new improvement possible were Harry Winston, Lawrence Gastorf, W. A. Alexander, Ray Bros., J. K. Masters, Carl Bowman and Archie Wilson.

Virgil Hodges Advanced To Electronics Technician

Virgil Clarence Hodges, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hodges of Glide, was recently advanced to electronics technician, second class while serving aboard the submarine USS Roquouk with the Pacific Fleet.

Hodges was advanced as a result of recent competitive examinations.

Expansion on Program

Looking forward to expanding the business of the near future, the manager reported that plans are being made for additional warehouse space and the increasing of grain storage facilities. He also called attention to the tract of ground adjoining the plant, which was bought this year for future expansion and is now being used as very convenient parking space for customers.

Directors E. O. Bloomquist of Elgarose and A. H. Marsh of Look-Inglass were re-elected to serve for two years. Judge D. N. Busenbark, Eugene Fisher of Hillsboro and Delmar Murphy of Umpqua are hold-over directors. Judge Busenbark was re-elected president of the board and A. H. Marsh, vice-president.

Following the business session, Bruce B. Strachan of the Public Relations department of the Public Supply cooperative presented a sound motion picture titled, "What is a Co-Op." This was an interesting portrayal of the growth of the cooperative movement and stressed the seven basic principles introduced by the Rochdale group who were pioneers in 1844 and have successfully followed these principles through the years.

These principles are: 1—Open-mindedness, 2—Democratic control (one member having one vote), 3—Limited interest on share capital, 4—Patronage refunds made in proportion to purchases, 5—Absolute neutrality in race, religion and politics, 6—Trading on cash basis, 7—Constant education of the members in Co-Op principles. This source of information also pointed out that in 1934 only one rural family in ten had electric service, while in 1950 the R.E.A. statistics show two million consumers, and that through nationally conducted cooperative buying of $250,000,000 was built up. Said this informant, the co-op has a workable pattern for maintaining better ways of life—in fact "Co-Ops are People."

Garden Valley Scouts Feast

Garden Valley scout troop, No. 43 observed national scout week at a potluck supper Friday, Feb. 10, at the Garden Valley Worn-an's club. John Todd, district counselor, guest speaker, outlined the camp program of the scouts and gave a resume of scouting over the past 40 years. To conclude the evening the boys demonstrated fire-friction, triangle bandages and knot tying.

Members of the scout troop, their families, committeemen and friends participated in the events. James S. Evans introduced the scouts and presented registration cards to them. Dan Esberg was awarded his tenderfoot badge and Hugh Ritchie, committee chairman, introduced committee members Jack Esberg and Cliff Hess. Also introduced were Cyril Sumner, scoutmaster and Jack Walters, assistant scoutmaster who gave informative talks on the history of the troop and plans for the future.

County Agent Leads Pruning Demonstration

Paul Helweg's orchard was the scene of pruning demonstration Thursday afternoon, Feb. 16. J. Roland Parker, county agent, demonstrated the proper pruning of peach, apple and pear orchards. Twenty commercial orchardists were present from Winston, Dillard and Roseburg.

In his lecture during the demonstration Parker pointed out that few orchards are of good value this year due to the shortage which is anticipated because of the hard winter. Orchards were especially hard hit in the northern part of the state, he said, not only from a standpoint of this year's crop, but also many growers had lost a number of trees. The greatest loss was suffered from those having young orchards, four years and under. Parker urged those present to prune thoroughly, but carefully, in order to enjoy a good crop this year.

Both Winston and Dillard are large fruit growing districts.

Expansion In Near Future Is Planned By Farm Bureau

By HAZEL S. MARSH

Reporting to the members of the Douglas County Farm Bureau Operative in their annual meeting held on Friday in the circuit court room in Roseburg, Mgr. A. J. Townsend stated that although the records show an increase of approximately 10 percent in the amount of merchandise sold in all departments in 1949, as compared to the sales of 1948, the cash involved showed an actual decrease of about 3 percent.

This was accounted for, said the manager, by the sharp decline in the prices of commodities. The co-op fell short of the million dollar sales figure by approximately 17,000 dollars in 1949. The manager reported a membership in the Co-Op of 1949 at the close of this fiscal year with a record of 3600 customers not taking out membership.

Refuting the statement sometimes heard here and there that the co-ops pay no taxes, Mgr. Townsend reported that the local co-op paid during the year just past in local, county and national taxes the amount of $8,475. This amount is over and above the taxes paid by the individual members who own 97 percent of the business.

Books On Alaska Offer Interest To Library Patrons

By MURIEL MITCHELL

A large and colorful map of Alaska, brought from there by S. Matthew Adams of Roseburg, forms the background for a group of books about the far North, now on exhibit at Roseburg Public Library. Adams has presented to the library a number of books and pamphlets which give a good picture of present conditions in Alaska.

Among recent books in the library's collection are: "Introducing Alaska" by B. J. Caldwell; "Alaska Now" by Agate Publishers; "Opportunity in Alaska" by George Sundberg; "The Flying North" by Jean Potter; "Four Fares to Juneau" by Marie Small; "Alaska Today" by B. W. Denison, and "Far North Country" by B. W. Denison.

Constance and Harmon Helmericks have had a deal of publicity, including a color spread in Life, their Alaskan adventures attract attention possibly because of their extreme youth and verve. Illustrations in their books are many, and details of everyday living so clear that after a course of Helmericks one is ready to start right up the Inland Passage. Titles are: "We Live in Alaska," "We Live in the Arctic," "Our Summer with the Eskimos," and "Our Alaskan Winter."

For the sportsman or naturalist, a brand-new volume with colored illustrations will be of interest. It is "Alaska's Animals and Fishes," one of a group of books presented to the library as a memorial to the late Thomas Wharton.

For a picture of the North as it was in earlier, rougher days, we recommend "The Time of My Life," by Dr. Harry Carlos D. Vishne, who spent many years as a frontier doctor in Alaska; or "Klondike '88"; "The Album of the 1898 Alaska Gold Rush," which is mainly photographs.

Mont Hawthorne's Story

Of particular interest to Oregonians is "The Trail Led North: Mont Hawthorne's Story," told in his own reay language by his granddaughter, Martha Ferguson McKenna, who lives in Hood River valley and occasionally visits Roseburg. Mont Hawthorne came west early in life; he drove an ox team into the Black Hills at the age of 11; at 14 he helped lay westward tracks for the railway to the sea; at 17 he reached San Francisco, and his trail led him north to Astoria before he was 18. All along the way he had adventure; his story is good reading for vivid pictures of primitive life, and even more for the sturdy courage and fine character Mont Hawthorne displays as boy and man.

These and other books about Alaska are being featured this week at Roseburg Public Library—with a few about Antarctica for good measure.

Hugh M. Bechtold Takes Part In Cold Exercises

Hugh M. Bechtold, chief engineer, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alwyn R. Bechtold of 340 West Second, N., Roseburg, a crew member of the landing ship USS 1138 is in the Arctic off the north coast of Alaska participating in a minor cold weather exercise.

The exercise involves 1,200 Navy personnel and some 300 Marines of the First Marine division. Among the naval units participating is an underwater demolition team, a specially trained beach master group, and units of naval aviation, including elements of Patrol Squadron One based at Kodiak, and a helicopter unit on the ice breaker USS Burton Island.

Led by the Burton Island, and aided by the reconnaissance reports from Navy planes, the six ships of the expedition will penetrate the dangerous sub-polar areas.

The expedition testing items of cold weather equipment now under consideration for adoption by the Navy and Marine Corps is gathering data on present techniques for exercises in areas of extreme cold.

Future Farmers Hold Vocational Contests Here

The southern half of Southwestern Oregon Future Farmers of America chapters held their vocational contests at Roseburg Saturday high school last Saturday. Thirty-four boys from Grants Pass, Myrtle Point
