

VA Warns Vets That Gate To GI Bill Will Close Soon

By ROWLAND EVANS JR. WASHINGTON. (AP) — The Veterans administration has warned veterans that the gate to education and training under the GI bill will be locked July 25, 1951. All inside the program by that date can stay there until their entitlement runs out or until their

"course" ends or until July 25, 1956, whichever comes first. Most others will stay outside. One reason for this move undoubtedly was the howl brought on last fall when the VA put out a pre-dated regulation, known as I-A. Pressure from veterans, Congress and schools forced the VA to withdraw I-A, although its bad timing was not the only reason. (The strongest objection to it was that it compelled all veterans wanting to change a course to prove the new course was "essential" to employment.)

The VA is taking no chances on the possibility of any veteran's misinterpreting the significance of the July 25, 1951, deadline. In a long report sent to Congress Jan. 23 the VA took six closely-typewritten pages to present its interpretation of the cut-off date. It recognizes that the GI bill could be interpreted several ways with regard to that date.

The language in the law goes this way: "... That such course shall be initiated not later than four years after either the date of (a veteran's) discharge or after the termination of the present war, whichever is later." The "termination of the war" for this purpose as July 25, 1947, so there is no problem there. Four years later is July 25, 1951. (Almost all veterans were discharged before July 25, 1947.)

But what, the VA wondered, did Congress mean by "initiate a course?" It decided it meant that a veteran would have to be in or working on an education or training course by that date (unless he is in a "normal" vacation period, or is sick, etc.) Getting a certificate of eligibility to enter a course would not do. The course would have to be underway. Nor would this do:

Suppose a veteran is taking a college course today. He gets his degree next June and goes to work. He works for a little more than a year and then decides he needs a course in accounting. So in August, 1951, he goes to the VA and asks for a supplemental certificate of eligibility to enter an accounting course.

He thinks that since he "initiated" a course of study (his college course) long before the July 25, 1951, deadline he certainly has complied with the law and can re-enter training after that date. But he can't. The new regulation forbids it.

That's not all. Once a "course" of study or other training ends after the July 25, 1951, deadline, a veteran will have a very hard time getting into another, even though he can show he was studying or training as the deadline passed by. The regulation says clearly:

A veteran may change his course (after the deadline) only while in training and only for these "satisfactory reasons":
1. He is not making satisfactory progress and it's not his fault. 2. The course to which he wants to change fits his aptitude and previous education. 3. The new course would be a "normal progression" and would allow him to achieve his education or training objective.

Officer Gets Death Threat In Drive On Gangs

LOS ANGELES, March 7. (AP)—A top federal enforcement official disclosed Monday that he received a death threat in connection with the government's intensive drive against narcotics rings and gang warfare in California.

George White, head of the federal narcotics bureau in the western region, told a reporter he received a telephone call just after Abraham Davidian, a key government witness, was slain in Fresno last Wednesday. A voice said: "Here is a friendly tip. Davidian was first. You're next."

White said such threats are not unusual and that he discounts it. A federal grand jury, called in special session, began an investigation of the narcotics and gang war problems today. In the meantime James Robert Iannone, 36-year-old minor hoodlum who boiled the Mickey Cohen mob, is booked on suspicion of murder in the slaying of Davidian.

Iannone, a one-time boxer, is wanted for questioning by Fresno, Calif., police in the slaying there last Wednesday of Abe Davidian. Davidian was to have been the government's key witness in the trial of 14 men charged with narcotics conspiracy.
