

More New Fiction Available At Roseburg Public Library

By MURIEL MITCHELL
New fiction, arriving daily at Roseburg Public library indicates that 1950 is going to be a good year for the reading public. Favorite novelists are bringing out sequels to earlier successes, and a seasoning of new craftsmen keep old-timers on their toes. Here are a few old and new authors with fresh offerings:

Paul Anshutz's "Swiftwater," just a bit like "The Yearling," but with a locale all its own. Sallie Lee Bell's "Until the Day Break," a novel of the time of Christ's Ned Calmer's "The Strange Land," a war story which some critics rank above Mailer's "The Naked and the Dead." "The Sheltering Sky," Paul Bowles, and "A Long Day's Dying," Frederick Buechner are attracting much attention.

"The Year of the Spaniard," by Henry Castor, is one of the few to deal with the war of 1898. "The Duke's Daughter" is by Elizabeth Corbett, whose young Mrs. Meigs has never grown old yet.

Daphne Du Maurier's "Parasites," may not charm readers so much as her nameless heroine in "Rebecca," but can't fail to interest. Friends of Captain Horatio Hornblower will cheer at the sight of "Mr. Midshipman Hornblower" by C. S. Forester. "From Claudia to David," Rose Franken, will need no other word. And if you missed "Clementine" by Peggy Goodwin, you may catch up by reading "Take Care of My Little Girl," which looks equally amusing.

Henry Green's "Loving" has created a stir abroad, and will find many readers here too. "Village Doctor," Lucy Agnes Hancock, and "Frances," Catherine Hubbell, will be particularly enjoyed by women readers.

John Hersey has given us unforgettable accounts of war, disaster and reconstruction in "Into the Valley," "Hiroshima," "Bell for Adano." The human element predominates in his superbly written books. "The Wall" is his most ambitious and as fascinating as the best of them.

John Jennings continues his historical vein with "The Sea Eagles," a story of the American Navy during the Revolution. Richard Lewellyn's new one is "A Few Flowers for Shiner." Ruth McKenney's "Love Story," tells of her marriage in the carefree style of "My Sister Eileen."

"Homecoming," Elizabeth Siefert;

"The King's Cavalier," Samuel Shelabarger; "Mingo Dabney," James Street; "The Pink House," Nella Gardner White; the only trouble is, they are never on the shelf. A reserve postal card will hold any book for the eager borrower; ask about it!

"Journey to a High Mountain," James Wellard, is unusual and highly recommended. It may find a place in the Lenten Reading shelf which includes also "Seven Storey Mountain," "The Waters of Siloe," and a choice selection of Fostick Buton and other writers in the field of religion.

Now is the time when reviewers formulate lists of outstanding books who wish to read the 1949 ones they may have missed, here are some high-ranking titles: "The Egyptian," Walter; "Mary," Asch; "High Towers," Costain; "The Way West," Guthrie; "The Peaceable Kingdom," Kennelly; "Let Love Come Last," Caldwell; "Elephant Walk," Standish; "The Lonely," Gallico; "The Chain," Wellman; "The Long Love," John Sedgwick; "Point of No Return," Marquand; "Kinfolk," Buck; "Never Dies the Dream," Gannett; "The Brave Bulls," Tom Leas.

And for the lighter side of 1949, there were "Father of the Bride," Streeter; "Hound-Dog Man," Gipsy; "Especially Father," Gladys Taber; "Cream Hill," Gannett; "Cheaper by the Dozen," two of the Gilbreths.

Mrs. Hayes then presented her third grade drum corps. The students do not yet have drums, but expect them by the end of the school term. Accompanied by Mrs. Hayes at the piano, the boys tapped out the cadence with their cadence sticks and the girls twirled their batons. In uniform, the boys wore blue hats and the girls red skirts.

Mr. Smith then led her Camp Fire Girls in a group of songs, and the newly organized Blue Bird group also sang, directed by their leader, Mrs. McDonald.

After the program, Mrs. Dickenson conducted a popcorn and candy sale, and refreshments were served by Camp Fire Girls.

The pilot, advertising a flying service by towing a banner behind his plane, was tooting the horn to attract attention.

Sandra suffered burns over 75 percent of her body when her party dress was set afire by a gas heater three months ago.

The child requires a blood transfusion every other day because she bleeds profusely each time her bandages are changed. The doctors explained she was unable to manufacture enough blood to replace the loss.

TOKYO, March 13.—(AP)—Dr. Toshio Otsuki, inventor of paper balloons the Japanese floated across the ocean to the United States and Canada with incendiary bombs during the war, was listed as a suicide today by the newspaper Mainichi.

The newspaper said Otsuki and a girl fellow worker in a factory committed suicide in a forest on Izu peninsula 100 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Mainichi carried the story under a headline "Inventor of Balloon Bomb Goes to Heaven."

During the war the Japanese inflated the balloons and loaded them with small destructive and incendiary bombs hoping the prevailing winds would float them to the United States. Some reached North America and at least one landed in the Pacific northwest killing several school children on a picnic.

Woman's Right To Cuss At Issue Before NLRB
WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The case of a lady's right to cuss on the job was handed back today for a new hearing.

The National Labor Relations board set aside earlier findings on Mrs. Edna Ruggles, who was fired by the Indianapolis Glove Co., Marion, Ind., last year for persistent swearing.

The AFL International Glove Workers union appealed her case, and in September an NLRB trial examiner recommended she be rehired.

At that point Mrs. Ruggles remarked: "I'm pretty damn tired of the whole thing." But today the board, by a 3 to 1 vote, wiped out the examiner's report and ordered a rehearing of such other disposition of the case as the regional NLRB director finds advisable.

Sheriff Found Gun-Slain On Highway In Texas
PRESIDIO, Tex., March 13.—(AP)—Officers probing the death of Sheriff O. W. (Blackie) Morrow had a first class mystery.

Morrow was shot and left dying on a lonely mountain road early yesterday in this rugged Big Bend country.

Officers said he might have been shot by his own gun. They couldn't find it or his handcuffs.

The 43-year-old sheriff had been here on official business and was returning to Marfa, the Presidio county seat, shortly after midnight yesterday.

Two bullets hit Morrow, one grazing his head and the other tearing a hole through his chest and out his back.

Officers said skid marks indicated Morrow got out of his car to question occupants of another vehicle and that he apparently was disarmed, then shot.

GRANTS PASS, March 13.—(AP) Class attendance at Illinois Valley high school, Cave Junction, was normal this morning after a student walkout of half the students Friday afternoon.

The students heeded the admonition of Principal Clarence Hagen that no further demonstrations would be tolerated during school hours.

Hagen is one of five teachers the local school committee seeks to have dropped at the end of the school year. Friday's walkout was staged in an effort to prevail upon the committee to change its stand.

The county unit board has called a meeting here tonight at which the Illinois valley situation will be considered further.

Russians Cast Ballots At One-State Election
(By The Associated Press)
Millions of Russians followed Prime Minister Stalin to the polls yesterday to cast ballots for a single state of candidates for the Soviet union's parliament. From the Bering strait to the mouth of the Danube, dutiful Soviet citizens lined up at polling booths to vote for 671 nominees for the council of the union, the upper house of the supreme Soviet and 631 members of the council of nationalities.

All the candidates were unopposed. To vote against one a voter would have to draw a line through the name on the ballot. Thus the government usually counts the voters, instead of the vote, and gives out for publication the percentage who voted "yes," usually well over 90 percent.

Stalin himself was a candidate from the Stalin district of Moscow, for the council of the union.

Sen. McCarthy Charges
WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) told senators today he has heard reports that a former Navy scientist familiar with the country's "topmost defense secrets" is an admitted Communist. He proposed an investigation.

McCarthy named the man as Stephen Brunauer, a former Navy commander.

He tossed this out while ticking off to a Senate foreign relations committee the names of State department employees he says have displayed Communist sympathies.

McCarthy has charged the State department is honeycombed with Reds and sympathizers. State department officials have denied that. The Senate group is giving McCarthy an opportunity to produce what proof he has.
