How's Your Luck? Here's Pointers On Trout Angling

BALTIMORE—This spring, when young men's fancies turn to thoughts of fishing, remember these pointers when going after trout:

Shadows scare trout, for one of their greatest fears is predatory birds. Keep your shadow and the shadow of your rod out of the water.

Load clothes or a white shirt alarm the fish. Best are dark gray, green or khaki clothes.

Early season fly fishing is more successful with wet flies, fished low and deep on a slack line. Cast slightly upstream and across, letting the fly sink and drift with the current. But watch that slack line closely; a slight twitch means a strike. Large, dark flies seem to give the best results.

During July and August, when the water is low, trout disappear. Fish early in the morning or late in the afternoon in spring holes beneath falls and rapids where the water is aerated.

Trout feed at midday early in the season, later when the water warms up. During midsummer, early morning and sunset are best.

By The Associated Press
 Top-ranking Oregon State, lone undefeated team in the northern division Coast conference baseball race, puts its unblemished record up against the challenging Washington Huskies today at Corvallis. The invaders, half a game behind the Beavers, stayed in the race with an even split the forepart of this week against Washington State's title-defenders. The two-game series, ending tomorrow, is the lone division play on schedule. Idaho enhanced its chances of escaping the league cellar yesterday by plastering a 17-12 defeat on the Oregon Ducks at Eugene.

A RINGER FOR VALUE!

High score in gas economy goes to this big, 3600-pound Mercury that won the Grand Canyon Economy Sweepstakes at 26.5 miles per gallon. Add points in flashing performance with Mercury's V type "Hi-power Compression" engine that is setting "speed track" records all over the country. It's a combination of performance and economy so remarkable that automotive engineers have named it the "hot package" car of 1950. All this, plus Mercury's famous "Lounge-Rest" ride, "Customized" two-tone interiors and "Merco-Therm" heating and ventilating, for as little as $49 a month—with a surprisingly generous trade-in on your old car. Ergo, why buy a small light car when you can drive the outstanding value of the year for so very little more?
