Now you Know!

The answers to everyday insurance problems*
By KEN BAILEY

QUESTION: When I read of the huge damages awarded to people injured in automobile accidents, I begin to wonder if the five and ten thousand or even ten and twenty thousand dollar public liability policy is large enough to give complete protection. I hear of people carrying fifty and hundred thousand dollar liability policies and I would like to know if the cost of such insurance is too high for the average person to pay.

ANSWER: Not at all. As a matter of fact, a very small increase in premium can change a ten and twenty thousand dollar liability policy to a twenty-five and fifty thousand dollar protection. You are quite right, too, about the need for greater protection as the size of damage award has increased substantially in the past few years.

* If you'll answer your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answer and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.
