He is accompanied by Captain Kenneth Anderson of Portland, youth leader for the Oregon-Southern Idaho division, who will assist Brig. Wilmer in conducting Sunday services.

Taxation Up To Electors, Forum Told

Interim Committee, At Local Forum, Points Out Costs Of Pending Plans

Senator Howard Belmont, chairman of the state interim tax study commission, speaking before a forum gathering in the Hotel Umpqua Wednesday afternoon, stressed that in Oregon taxation rests primarily with the people.

The legislature cannot pass a tax bill with an emergency clause. Every measure may be referred to the people through the initiative and referendum. He called attention to the fact the voters have said "no" on 52 and "yes" on only 21 measures calling for additional taxes.

Representative Giles French of Moro, referring to the proposed increase to $80 a year per census child and the soldiers' bonus bill, said these measures, if approved by the voters in November, will cost the public about $17,000,000 a year.

The basic school bill, he said, would cost the taxpayers about $12,000,000 annually. He contended that, while state support has tended to equalize wealth distribution, it has not equalized educational opportunities. He advocated drastic reductions in school expenditures, but stated the decision as to whether the people want to pay additional taxes is up to them.

Bonus And Welfare

As for the World War II bonus bill, it would cost the state $90,000,000, or an average of about $5,000,000 a year, including interest, for a period of 20 years. This, too, he said is up to the voters.

Mrs. Louise Humphrey spoke of the initiative measure to sustain the Dunn bill, which would eliminate relative assistance and the requirement that property of welfare recipients upon their death revert to the state in proportion to the amount paid to them.

She quoted statistics to show that after the legislature provided these restrictions, a great number of names were withdrawn from the relief rolls. Public welfare, she said, is the third largest state expense. Douglas county alone will have spent, from state, federal and county funds, over $700,000 for welfare for the year ending June 30.

Representative John Sells spoke of the proposal to prohibit the state from levying a property tax. Under this plan, the state would operate only with the funds available from other sources.

The trend, Sells stated, is away from property tax. The measure would leave real property to the local levels for taxation. This is not a new plan, he said, because 15 states do not levy property taxes. Oregon has levied, but has not had to collect, a property tax since 1940. The tax has been offset by income taxes.

Judge Earl Day spoke of the inconsistency of assessment of property and the collection of taxes, which varies in the 35 counties. He personally advocates that these two agencies be taken out of politics and have the head appointed, possibly by the county courts with qualifications set by the state.

Business Tax Feasible

Representative French next discussed the proposed business tax which he believes would be more equitable than the present method of assessing inventories. The business tax, for example, would equalize taxes paid by business men on inventories of farm equipment, usually very low at the end of the year, with inventories of a dry-goods store, which must be stable. He gave as an example also live-

Prizes Awarded In Dairy Carton Competition

An interesting display of entrants and prizewinners in the recent Umpqua dairy carton contest is on exhibit at the Emery Insurance company, 222 N. Jackson street.

Nearly 200 entries were received in the contest which attracted countywide interest. Grand prize winner was a toy train fashioned by Mrs. Lorraine Long, route 3, box 330. Prizes were also given for the oldest and youngest entry.

Many of the contestants entered similar ideas and the judges made an effort to select the best of these for the prize winners. Ideas ranged from toys, frozen food containers, salt and pepper shakers to kindling for picnics and camping trips.

Oregon Primary Vote Of 50 Percent Predicted

Latourette, Portland, former Democratic national committeeman. Oregon's four congressmen, all Republicans, have nothing to worry about in the primary, although they face stubborn opposition in November.

Reps. Walter Norblad, Astoria; Lowell Stockman, Pendleton, and Harris Ellsworth, Roseburg, are unopposed in tomorrow's election. Rep. Homer D. Angell, Portland, has two opponents, but neither is well-known.

Three Vie For Supreme Court

The only judicial contest on the ballot is a three-way fight for supreme court justice. The candidates are State Sen. Austin Dunn, Baker; Circuit Judge Walter L. Toole, Portland; and Robert F. Maguire, Portland, former war crimes trial judge in Germany. The two top candidates will run off in November, unless one wins a clear majority tomorrow.

State Labor Commissioner W. E. Kinsey and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Rex Putnam are unopposed tomorrow. Nominees for the state legislature also will be chosen in tomorrow's election.

Canyonville School Holds Open House For Patrons

A large number of parents and patrons of the Canyonville school district attended the "Open House" at the school Wednesday night. Regular classes were conducted in all the grades from 8 to 9:30. This proved to be most interesting to all parents. It was the first event of this kind in Canyonville. The open house took the place of the final meeting of the year of the local Parent-Teacher association.

stock, which must usually be carried through one taxing period, contrasted with sheep or poultry, which is sold before the taxing period.

Senator Belmont, in summing up, stated that the finances of the state are sound today, but the state could very easily become bankrupt if the people vote unsound tax measures. The state is constantly drawing on its reserve funds, and will be showing a deficit by the end of the biennium, unless additional taxes are available.

Lengthy discussion followed the forum talks. School representatives posed the problem of what would the schools do to finance education without state support. They declared the burden on the local districts was now too great.

Various tax measures, including the sales tax were interjected into the discussion.
