Record Number Of Elk Killed

Oregon's 1949 elk kill was the largest yet recorded. Elk tag returns received by the Oregon State Game Commission show that 26,096 big game hunters bagged 9,134 elk during the 1949 season.

In the last three years, the elk kill has tripled, and the number of elk hunters has nearly doubled. These figures are based on tag returns and checking station records kept since 1933. The elk season was first opened in 1933 following a 14-year ban on elk hunting.

Robert Mace, chief of big game for the game commission, attributes the large elk kill to the liberal elk hunting regulations of the last few seasons, especially the cow or bull elk provision for most of eastern Oregon. "As the herds increase, the regulations are relaxed to allow an adequate harvest of the surplus animals," stated Mace.

The largest kill was made in Umatilla county where 6,011 sportsmen took 2,923 elk. The Union county kill of 2,192 animals was next highest followed by Grant county with a recorded take of 1,426 wapiti.

Only 449 elk were shot in western Oregon according to tag returns. Stricter hunting regulations and a brushy terrain were chiefly responsible for the scant kill in the western portion of the state, continued Mace. The western Oregon season was Oct. 25 to Nov. 3 for bull elk with three points or more. For most of eastern Oregon, the season extended to Nov. 20, and elk of either sex were legal in all but the Cheshnumus and Starkey areas which were open for bull elk with visible horns. In the North Baker valley, the season extended to Dec. 31.

The population of the African Gold Coast is about four million.

FAR WEST LEAGUE

The Redding Browns whittled Klamath Falls' Far West baseball league lead down to a game and a half last night in swamping the Gems, 17 to 7.

Meanwhile, second place Medford made it four straight over Eugene, 11-3, and third place Pittsburg downed last place Reno 12 to 9. Redding is in fourth spot. Marysville thumped Willows 12-8 in the other league game to nudge the Cardinals out of sixth place.

Kiser To Meet Fenton Saturday On Armory Mat

Jack Kiser, who before the war was the youngest wrestler ever to hold the Pacific coast light-heavyweight championship, returns to the Roseburg armory Saturday night as junior heavyweight champion of the Rocky Mountain area. He has been campaigning out of Salt Lake City for the past three months.

Sporting a beautiful tan which displays his muscular body advantageously, Kiser will be meeting a formidable foe in Rod Fenton, the villainous Canadian who will be making his local debut. To match Kiser's spectacular style of wrestling—drop kicks, flying tackles, etc.—Fenton will employ a half Boston crab and a surfboard in addition to his inevitable rough-and-tumble tactics.

Light On Title Bout
The spotlight will be focused on the Pacific coast light-heavyweight championship match, however. Jack O'Reilly, the great titleholder from Australia, will defend his crown against the challenge of Eddie Williams, the popular Scotsman from Springfield, Mo.

In their last meeting here three weeks ago, O'Reilly beat Williams by a bad break and an extremely narrow margin. For that reason the Roseburg commission has ruled a return engagement, although O'Reilly demanded a guarantee of not less than $250.

Uses "Giant Swing"
Williams, who defeated Karl Gray here last week, will count heavily on his effective "giant swing" and O'Reilly is certain to employ his usual hammerlocks. O'Reilly has been a consistent winner, and his only losses in recent months have come as the result of technicalities—usually fouls.

The two-star mat show promises to attract a near-capacity crowd. The starting time will be 8:45 p.m. Because of the importance of the match, Matchmaker Elton Owen has secured the services of Johnny Paavich as referee.

Both the opener and headliner will be over one-hour, three-fall routes.

SADDLER KOs ACEVEDO
MINNEAPOLIS, May 26—(AP)—Sandy Saddler of New York City today retained the No. 1 contender for Willie Pep's featherweight title, thanks to a sixth-round technical knockout over Miguel Acevedo last night.

Saddler was ahead on points up to the time of the knockdown, having piled up a clear cut lead in the earlier rounds.

Saddler weighed 129 pounds, Acevedo 130.

U. S. Democracy At Best In Sports, Coach Leahy Says

BOSTON, May 26—(AP)—Notre Dame football coach Frank Leahy points to American sports as an example of democracy "at its best."

"In sports," said Leahy, "no one asks about an individual's race or creed. He only asks what the player did on the field. This is America at its best. It's a constant reminder that there is in America an opportunity for all."

Leahy spoke last night at the 13th dinner of the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

Leahy, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and comedian Eddie Cantor received citations as examples of "a basic principle of American brotherhood."
