Paratrooper Fails In Effort To Break Record

CLINTON, N.C., May 29.—(P)— A Fort Bragg paratrooper "just gave out" yesterday after making 54 parachute jumps in an attempt to set a new world's record.

Pfc. Neal Stewart, 22, of Birmingham, Ala., blamed his unsuccessful attempt on the small size of the "drop zone"—a grassy area —at the airport here. He said he missed the "drop zone" eight times, landing once in a ditch and five times on the runway.

However, he escaped without serious injury.

Stewart had set his sights on making 75 jumps, one more than the number claimed May 18 by a Yugoslavian in London. That claim, however, has been superseded by Argentina, where one jumper has laid claim to 105 jumps in a single day.

Mae West Plans Casino, Theater-Cafe In Nevada

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 29.—(P)— Mae West, the "come up and see me, sometime" gal, has a new proposition.

Her attorney, Charles Catt, says the actress plans to build a $1,000-000 casino and theater-restaurant in this desert resort.

Catt announced yesterday that Miss West plans to settle here and run the venture herself after her current show closes in Boston next month.

Name of the establishment will be "Mae West's Diamond Lil Casino and Restaurant."

GIRLS ON THE GREENS—Professional golfer Willis Foland gives a golf lesson to girl students of Roosevelt High School, Atlanta, in a program by professional golfers to provide instruction in the high schools one afternoon a week.

NAZI PATTERN REPEATED—Too young to remember similar demonstrations under the old Nazi banner, Berlin youngsters (foreground) watch formations of Communist "Youth Pioneers" march into Wulbeide sports field. The "Pioneers," quartered in a nearby tent city, are shown preparing for their huge "peace demonstration," just as Hitler used to mass young Nazis before starting his attempt to conquer Europe. Threatened climax of the demonstration is mass invasion of West Berlin by 500,000 youths.

A Story Of Little Iceland And Its Delegate To Bretton Woods Meeting

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
For DEWITT MACKENZIE

Today I want to tell you a little "one world" story from the Bretton Woods conference of July 1944.

It's about the gentle, blue-eyed men and women who made up the Icelandic delegation to the meeting up in New Hampshire where the world bank and fund set up.

The problems were complicated, and for a month delegates and press alike worked both day and night. But one evening the U.S.
State department called a halt and put on an American movie.

I sat with the big pink-checked president of the Bank of Iceland.
We chatted before the picture.

"Miss Arne," he said, "I am now going through your magnificent American literature. Right now I am doing Mark Twain."

"Jumping Frog Recalled"
I said: "Oh, fine. Do you know The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County?"

He puckered his brows a little and said: "The jumping frog I know. But the yoke I cannot see."

I questioned him and found he was disturbed that Americans would laugh over fraud. Remember the story tells about a country frog race in which one of the best frogs is given a diet of buckshot to make him lose the race.

My Icelandic friend didn't think that was funny. So I explained that we were really laughing because the man had gone to so much trouble for such a little gain, that in America the same sort of hard work, if a man had big vision, would get him so much more. So we were only laughing at stupidity.

Looks Relieved
My friend looked relieved. His faith in the United States had apparently been restored.

A few nights later he and the rest of his delegation and asked me shyly to go to the tap-room with them before dinner and drink a toast to Iceland.

It turned out this was the little republic's first birthday. It had gained its freedom from Denmark just the year before, during the war.

They told of their land, which makes much of its income by shipping fish to Europe.

"What about the long winter nights?" I asked.

"Oh, we read," I was told.
"What?"

Poetry Mostly
"Poetry a great deal. You know our dock hands and fishermen have an annual poetry contest.
There are really some very good writers among them."

I had to chuckle at myself over what a shock that would be to some of Harry Bridges' union members.

Suddenly the delegation began to sing softly the Icelandic hymn.
It was a touching scene. Around the big room, talk stopped, and faces turned to the Icelanders in understanding. At the end of the ITCH (Seashells is highly considered a nuisance and will eat time for life if not stopped. Its sole cause is the itch mite, which is immamally small. EXSOLIA kills the itch-mite almost instantly. Only three days' EXSOLIA treatment is required.

Mail orders given prompt attention.

ell, Summer, Washington.

Student Shoots Another With Stolen Revolver

CAIRO, Egypt, May 29.—(P)— An Egyptian medical student went berserk during an exam yesterday and attacked three professors—two of them British—with a pistol.

Police said the assailant, Tahir El Naffrawi, shot British professor Richard Wheeler Haines in the arm and Mahmoud El Batrawy, Egyptian lecturer, in the hand. He then clubbed Dr. Douglas E. Derry, 70-year-old Egyptologist, with the pistol butt.

Derry was one of the archaeolo-gists who discovered the famed tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen in 1922.

Here From Portland—Paul Zig-ler of Portland, formerly of this city, is spending several days in Roseburg, visiting.
