Enlistments Not Halted By Change In Service Law

Extension of the selective service law on a standby basis will not effect voluntary enlistments of 18-year-olds, M-Sgt. John F. Rose of the local army and air force recruiting station, announced today.

Youths may still enlist in the army for a two-year period, although the legislation eliminates the 18-month and one-year enlistment terms. Seventeen-year-olds may enlist with their parents' consent. Air force enlistment terms remain unchanged, with the minimum term of enlistment set at four years.

A choice of four army branches is open to young men with no prior service who elect to serve for periods of three, four, five or six years. These include the Coast Artillery corps, Corps of Engineers, Field Artillery, and the Infantry.

Sgt. Rose said men with prior service in any of the armed forces have a wide selection. In addition to the branches named, they may enlist for assignment to the Chemical corps, Corps of Military Police, Finance dept., Medical dept., Ordnance dept., Quartermaster corps, Signal corps, and Transportation corps.

Winchester Fish Count Decreases

The fish count at the Winchester dam counting station up to June 1 was less than during the corresponding period in 1949, according to statistics released today by Ross Newcomb, fisheries field agent of the State Game commission.

The count through May 31, including 68 salmon counted the final day of the season, was 1217 chinook, 194 jacks and 7,008 winter steelhead.

This is 435 more steelhead than the parent run in 1946. This may not be significant since a good portion of recent steelhead has been definite "summer" fish, Newcomb pointed out.

The winter steelhead count for 1948 was 6,563; for 1947, 11,220; for 1946, 9,700, and for 1949, 9,225. The jack salmon count has been 189 in 1946, 592 in 1947, 134 for 1948 and 9,225 for 1949. The chinook count has been 1,342 for 1946, 2,335 for 1947, 1,200 for 1948 and 1,568 for 1949. The figures cover the period from Jan. 1 through May 31.

Locomotive Engineer Faces Speeding Charge

SYLACAUGA, Ala., June 1.—(AP)—A quick getaway in a locomotive while under arrest will switch Engineer Jason McCullom into court here Monday.

The highballing railroader faces charges of speeding, resisting arrest, and escaping from police.

The speeding charge, said Mayor Ed Howard, was filed against McCullom because he ran a Louisville & Nashville passenger train through Sylacauga at too fast a clip.

Police rushed to the next stop and placed McCullom under arrest. When police allowed the engineer to return to the train "for just a minute," McCullom opened the throttle, the mayor said, and highballed out of town so fast he almost got away without the conductor.

Once more the police set out after the local. At the next town where McCullom again was placed under arrest, and released on $300 bond.

Monday he'll have to explain all the hoopla to the judge.
